Leaders Say Truce Talks May Go On

Communist Ratification of Pact Is Awaited by UN Before Beginning Parley

Sets Meeting Hour

Joy Would Convene With Reds at 11 A.M. Tuesday

Munsan, Korea, Oct 22 (AP)—Korean truce talks are expected to resume tomorrow or Wednesday.

Liaison officers today completed an agreement for reopening negotiations after a two-month break. The United Nations command promptly ratified it.

If the Communists OK it today, armistice talks will reopen at 11 a. m. tomorrow (9 p. m. tonight EST).

The UN command said no word had been received from the Reds up to 8 p. m. Monday (6 a. m. EST).

Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, spokesman for the UN command said if Red approval is received tomorrow morning, delegations "may well agree on initiating the sessions tomorrow afternoon."

The two five-man negotiating committees will meet in a faded yellow tent at Panmunjom, midway between opposing front lines. They will take up right where they left off at Kaesong—on the question of where to create a demilitarized zone for the armistice. The Reds suspended the Kaesong talks Aug. 23. They charged the Allies bombed the Kaesong neutral zone the day before but the Allies denied the charge.

UN and Communist liaison officers completed their arrangements for renewal of negotiations by signing an eight-point security pact at 10:45 a. m. Monday.

Ratification Delivered

Three hours and 20 minutes later the UN ratification was delivered to the Reds at Panmunjom.

It called on the Communists to renew truce talks "without further delay."

The UN ratification was signed by Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, chief UN delegate. He told North Korean Lt. Gen. Nam Il, head of the Red delegation, the allied negotiating team was prepared to meet with the Communists the day after the Red reply was received. He set the hour for meeting at 11 a. m.

Joy's purpose in ratifying the security agreement before talks actually begin, and asking for the Red endorsement in advance, was to prevent a possible reopening of discussion of the "ground rules" by the Communists.

Joy's message enumerated the items of the agreement signed by liaison officers as well as the "mutual understandings" they reached in 12 sessions at Panmunjom.

Reds Lose 15,000 Men, Officer Says—Six Jet Battles Take Place Over Zone

Field Knocked Out

B-29s Smash Airport at Taechon, North of Pyongyang

U. S, Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Oct. 22 (AP)—American tanks rumbled into flaming Kumsong today for the second time in three days as Chinese retreated before advancing allied infantrymen.

For four hours the M-46 Patton tanks shot up the former Red stronghold on the central front. Then they lumbered back through mud and heavy mortar fire to their own lines.

Allied infantrymen, striking out of the fog, overran two hill masses including the highest yet taken on the 15-mile Kumsong front.

The Reds put up a hot fight on one ridgeline for a little while Then they withdrew, and the United Nations infantrymen advanced unopposed through the mud.

Despite the soggy going, the advance was so rapid engineers had a hard time keeping up with the infantrymen.

Forty-two Chinese didn't bother to retreat. They surrendered.

A front line officer estimated Red casualties in the 10-day offensive would exceed 15,000.

Ground action quieted all along the front as liaison officers completed arrangements for resuming truce talks, but the air over northwest Korea flamed with six jet battles.

Two Jets Destroyed

Returning American pilots reported they probably destroyed two Russian-type MIG-15 jets and damaged another. The U. S. Fifth Air Force said all American planes returned safely.

The two probables were reported after a 20-minute battle Monday afternoon between 35 American F-86 Sabre jets and more than 50 MIGs. The damaged MIG was hit in a fight between 20 MIGs and nine F-84 Thunderjets.

A total of 182 Red jets were involved in the six battles. Most of the engagements were between MIGs and Thunderjets or F-80 Shooting Stars after the allies raided Red rail lines.

Nine B-29 Superforts from Okinawa on a "very special" mission reported they knocked out a brand new Communist air field at Taechon, 60 miles north of the Red capital, Pyongyang. The Superforts flew through heavy flak and fought off Red jets. They cratered freshly laid concrete runways with 96 tons of high explosives.

Steams Near Frontier

The navy reported the U. S. cruiser Helena steamed to within 60 miles of the Soviet Siberian frontier, blasting a 175-mile stretch of rail lines with her eight-inch guns.

United Nations artillery kept the battle blazing on the central front. A front line dispatch reported an estimated 500 Chinese were killed by artillery firing over flaming Kumsong into Red troop concentrations in the hills to the north.

A UN tank patrol entered the former Red stronghold briefly Saturday. Another patrol pushed to within 600 yards of the city Monday without finding a Chinese.

Southeast of the city, AP Correspondent Sam Summerlin reported green-cloaked doughboys pushed out in two separate columns. One moved east along a

Meat Crackdown Brings Raid; Violations Cited

Check Shows Total of 15 Violators and 62 Irregular Actions

New York, Oct. 22 (AP) — The first joint effort by Office of Price Stabilization agents and city inspectors searching for black market meat today produced a total of 15 violators and 62 violations.

The dual checkup centered about bridge, tunnel and ferry approaches to New York city and principal Manhattan, Queens and Bronx markets.

Twenty-five inspection teams started their search at 4 a. m. and made surprise "raids" on incoming trucks and local markets until about 9 a. m.

The agents' report to OPS Regional Director James G. Lyons said the violations consisted chiefly of short weight, ungraded and upgraded meat and improper invoices.

Agents intercepted 179 vehicles at the six principal entrances to the city. They reported eight violators for a total of 46 violations.

Found in Markets

The other seven violators — with a total of 16 violations — were found in city markets.

Lyons, after presenting the agents' report to Acting Mayor Joseph T. Sharkey, said the violations "showed the start of a so-called black market operation which we hope to nip in the bud."

However, City Commissioner of Markets Anthony Masciarelli said the morning's checkup did "not paint too black a picture."

Masciarelli added that 35,000,000 pounds of meat are delivered into the city each week.

Lyons said some of the violators would be given hearings under OPS regulations, while others would receive hearings under the Sharkey law relating to price law violators.

Under the Sharkey price control laws, each violation is subject to a $100 fine or 180 days in jail or both. Under OPS regulations, violators are subject to a $10,000 fine or one year in jail or both.

Both Lyons and Sharkey said there will be more surprise raids in the metropolitan area.

Senator Demands Counsel's Ouster

Move Called Until Probe Is Made With Relations to RFC Agency

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—Senator Thye (R.-Minn.) today demanded suspension of Charles E. Shaver, counsel to the Senate Small Business Committee, pending an investigation of his relations with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC), huge government lending agency.

Thye made public a telegram to Chairman Sparkman (D.-Ala.) of the committee declaring he was "shocked" at reports, confirmed by Shaver, that the counsel had helped to induce RFC directors to lend $1,100,000 to build a luxury hotel in Florida.

The loan, although approved, never was consummated.

Shaver said backers of the project rejected the RFC's stiff terms. He told a reporter he and Mrs. Flo Bratton, secretary to Vice President Barkley, had visited several RFC directors urging them to grant the loan.

No Apologies to Make

"I've got no apologies to make for it," he told a reporter.

He said Mrs. Flo Bratton, secretary to the vice president, also was active in negotiations which, he added, took them to the offices of some RFC directors.

"I was not aware that the RFC had rejected the loan four times before these people asked me for help," Shaver said. "I thought there had been one rejection, on grounds that collateral for the

Treasury Agent Testifies on Cars Owned by Delaney

Intelligence Worker Tells How Deal in 1949 Was Carried Out at Malden

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP) — A treasury agent testified today that Denis W. Delaney, ousted former tax collector at Boston, once obtained a new Cadillac and two new Chevrolets for $750 and a two-year-old Cadillac. He said two dealers who supplied the new cars were in tax difficulties.

John J. Callahan of Medford, Mass., special agent of the intelligence division, Boston revenue office, related the story to a House Ways and Means subcommittee. The congressional group is investigating charges of corrupt practices by income tax collectors.

Callahan said Delaney went to Ferry Street Motors, Malden, Mass., in March, 1949, and offered to trade his 1947 Cadillac on a new 1949 model with a list price of $4,500. He offered his old car and $250 in cash.

Callahan said Jordan Patkin, now principal stockholder of the motor company, turned down the deal, but that Delaney and a third man whom he couldn't identify, returned later and conferred with Patkin's father, Lewis, now dead.

Came From Conference

Callahan said the younger Patkin told him his father came out of the conference and told him "they know we are in trouble and that Uncle Ruby is in trouble and they want a new car for $250."

"Uncle Ruby" was identified as Rubin Patkin, brother of Lewis and operator of M & M Motor Sales, dealer in Chevrolets.

The investigation already has resulted in dismissal, suspension or resignation of 21 internal

Gold Coast Loses Glitter; Probe Ahead

Biloxi, Miss., Oct. 22 (AP) — The glitter of Mississippi's famed gold coast was dulled today as the Senate Preparedness Committee began hearings into effects of gambling, liquor and prostitution conditions on Keesler Air Base personnel.

Complying with an ultimatum from Sheriff Laz Quave of Harrison county, operators of slot machines and gambling casinos along the 12-mile long coastal playground had closed shop.

Old timers said it was the most complete shutdown since open gambling was started here about 1927. Slots were pulled out after Saturday night's business, but a few diehard casinos kept open last night.

82nd Congress Has Tough Docket in Order for January

National Defense, Cost Are Items to Get Attention—Record Is Made

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—The second session of the 82nd Congress convening Jan. 8 will face a crowded work docket, topped by two continuing major problems—national defense and how to pay the huge cost of it.

The first session which ended Saturday night dealt for nine and a half months with those key issues plus a variety of others, and the lawmakers chalked up a spending record for what technically is called peacetime.

Congress went home after appropriating $91,600,000,000. That was the figure most members used, although Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) said $6,000,000,000 should be added to it to cover so-called permanent appropriations—mostly interest on the national debt.

In any event, only during World War 2 was the total for a single year greater. In 1943 Congress voted $147,000,000,000, the record.

Three Bills to HST

In the orderly closing hours of the first session of this Congress, three bills carrying $13,133,000,000 were sent to the White House.

Fuller Night Watchman Is Found Dead—Two Verdicts Given

Ernest Houghtaling, 64, of 4 Clinton avenue, night watchman at the Fuller shirt factory, was found dead in the building this morning, and Helge Hjortsberg, 59, of Phoenicia, who was taken suddenly ill at a local drug store Saturday night, died shortly after he was admited to Kingston Hospital.

Coroner Ernest A. Kelly said both were victims of heart attacks.

Police were notified at 7:09 a. m., today by James Murphy, an employe of the shirt factory, that when he entered the building, he found that the night watchman had apparently died during the night. Officers Kenneth Stratton and Carl Janasiewicz were sent to investigate.

A veteran, Houghtaling had served overseas with the U. S. army during World War 1. He had been a member of the Church of the Holy Cross for 55 years and sang in its choir. He has been employed at the shirt factory for the past five years.

It is planned to organize various forms of sports including baseball, football, basketball or any other form of sports which the members of the club may elect to enter into.

In addition to providing athletic equipment, Alecca said the project would provide a place where the boys of the area could spend evenings and their spare time. 82nd Congress Has Tough Docket in Order for January

National Defense, Cost Are Items to Get Attention—Record Is Made

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—The second session of the 82nd Congress convening Jan. 8 will face a crowded work docket, topped by two continuing major problems—national defense and how to pay the huge cost of it.

The first session which ended Saturday night dealt for nine and a half months with those key issues plus a variety of others, and the lawmakers chalked up a spending record for what technically is called peacetime.

Congress went home after appropriating $91,600,000,000. That was the figure most members used, although Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) said $6,000,000,000 should be added to it to cover so-called permanent appropriations—mostly interest on the national debt.

In any event, only during World War 2 was the total for a single year greater. In 1943 Congress voted $147,000,000,000, the record.

Three Bills to HST

In the orderly closing hours of the first session of this Congress, three bills carrying $13,133,000,000 were sent to the White House.

Heart Attack Is Fatal to Tavern Owner on Sunday

George Robinson, 50, proprietor of the Log Cabin on the Minnewaska Trail at Kerhonkson, died suddenly from a heart attack Sunday night while tending bar in the grill. He was seated on a stool behind the bar when he suddenly toppled to the floor. He had been under the care of a physican for some time for a heart condition.

Robinson, born in Brooklyn, had been proprietor of the Log Cabin for about five years, having taken over the place from the late William Whittaker who had operated the place for several years.

Robinson's brother, Robert Robinson was the operator of the car which plunged down the Minnewaska Trail hill at Kerhonkson Saturday morning fatally injuring Isidore Siegel, proprietor of a grocery store at the foot of the mountain road when the Robinson car crashed into the food market. It is believed that this accident in which his brother was involved had disturbed George Robinson considerably and may have been responsible for the attack Sunday night.

Verdict Is Given

Coroner Arthur C. Chipp of Kerhonkson was summoned and gave a verdict of death from an acute heart condition.

Robinson was unmarried. He and his brother, Robert, resided at the Log Cabin Inn. Beside his mother in Brooklyn, two sisters in Brooklyn, and three brothers survive, Robert of Kerhonkson and two in New Orleans. The body was taken to Brooklyn Sunday night and services will be held from the Jeffers Funeral Home, 4 Hamilton Parkway, Brooklyn. Burial will be in Washington Cemetery, Brooklyn.

Siegel Is Buried;

son, who was not hurt, later told sheriff's men that he was on his way to the grocery store, Siegel's Food Market, when the accident occurred.

Brakes Gave Way

Robert Robinson told Identification Officer Arthur H. Brown of the sheriff's office that he was coming down the mountain and about opposite the synagogue—approximately 400 feet from the bottom of the hill—the brakes of his 1948 Buick automobile gave way.

Robinson said he sounded his horn continuously and kept pumping the brake pedal. At the bottom of the hill, he attempted to swerve left on Main street, but was unable to make the complete turn and shot across the road.

Brown and the other investigators—Sheriff Cluett Schantz and Deputy Irving Gillman—said the Robinson auto squeezed between a parked automobile wrecking its right door that was open, and the buildings, finally plunging through the store front.

Robinson told sheriff's men the brakes on his automobile had been repaired on Wednesday.

Children Not Hurt

The parked auto was owned by Morris Simonofsky, a Kerhonkson area resident for 40 years. Simonofsky's two children had just gotten out of the right door of the car, but were miraculously unhurt, Brown reported.

After the Robinson automobile had been moved back out of the store enough to permit a doctor to treat the grocer, Siegel was found to be suffering from severe shock, a compound fracture of the left femur and a tramautic amputation of the right leg, according to the sheriff's office report.

Siegel is survived by his wife, Celia; two daughters, Ruth, at home, and Mrs. Seymour Graubard of Monticello; a son, Albert, of Kerhonkson, and two brothers, Charles, of South Fallsburgh and Louis Siegel of The Bronx.

Robinson was not held.

Tipster Taken to Park

Hackensack, N. J., Oct. 22 (AP)—Police took a blonde tipster to Cliffside Park today to check out her story of driving three men to a restaurant there the morning gambler Willie Moretti was killed. The blonde, Pat Clifford, 27, babbled her story to New York police over the weekend and put the finger on a "strong suspect" in the case, an unemployed tailor named Joseph Li Calsi. She said Li Calsi was one of the three men she drove to Joe's Restaurant in Cliffside Park. They met Moretti there with another man, she said. Minutes later Moretti was lying dead on the tiled floor of the restaurant with two bullets in his brain.

Evening Verse—
(For Your Scrapbook)
By DANIEL J. O'CONNOR

HARVEST TIME

These are the days of the harvest
When apples have rouge-tinted cheeks
This is the Fall, when the cider mills call
And nature is dressed in antiques.
This is the season of suppers
When cooking is done at the grange
Tempting us there in the countryside air
With goodies, the ladies prepare.

This is the twilight of Summer
When meadows are startled with frost
Pumpkins will sigh as they settle in pie
Regretful that Summer is lost.
Fortunes are loaded in barrels
Where orchards relinquish their gold
This is the time for a poet to rhyme
The tale that is centuries old.

The harvest has come with its blessings
That farmer and city man reap
And mem'ries that play live in fragrance today . . .
The good earth has bargained for sleep.

The police report said there had been reports that the dog had bitten two or three children. The test at Albany will determine whether the animal was rabid.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Declines of around one to four points were common on the stock market today as a selling wave hit midway through a session already marked by losses.

The volume bulit up as selling orders poured onto the floor and the ticker tape fell as much as seven minutes behind floor transactions at times.

Chemicals led the slide but there were substantial losses in every major group.

Traders said the continuation of declines that began last Friday was due in large part to disappointment over the earnings of such large corporations as du Pont and General Electric.

American Cyanamid dropped 4⅛ at one time and Allied Chemical was off four points. du Pont slipped four points but steadied enough to gain back a few cents.

Egypt Accuses Britain Anew of Aggressive Acts

Cairo, Oct. 22 (AP)—Egypt, her forces reported moving rapidly toward mobilization on a war basis, accused Britain anew today of "acts of aggression." Britain sent fresh troops into the disputed Suez Canal Zone and Cairo newspapers said an Egyptian guerrilla movement was forming to drive the Britons out.

The first battalion of the Cheshire Regiment arrived last night from Cyprus to reinforce Britain's Canal Zone troops. A British embassy spokesman, announcing this, said a battalion normally has a strength of 600 men, but would not say the strength of the reinforcing unit, a rifle battalion which arrived in the troopship Empress of Australia.

Note to British

Egypt's government sent a new note from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to the British Embassy, accusing the British of "new acts of aggression." It said:

"Not satisfied with defying the feelings of the civil population, British authorities in the Canal Zone wish also to provoke the Egyptian Army, which thus far has avoided all cause for friction."

The note said British troops Saturday at Port Said mortally wounded an Egyptian sentry at an Egyptian army camp, and also fired on an Egyptian sentry before Egypt's government office in Port Said.

A short time before, the Egyptian Government made public a note charging that the British actions in the Suez Canal area made it look as if the British were "moving in to conquer the country."

A British spokesman said the British Royal Navy now was controlling movements of shipping in the Suez area and carrying supplies for Britons guarding the strategic 104-mile canal, vital link in the commonwealth's lifeline.

Canal Is Guarded

British warships guarded both ends of the canal. A spokesman said, however, that this control did not extend to other shipping going through the canal. He said the privately operated Suez Canal Company remains in control of canal shipping.

The Empress of Australia's voyage was a shuttle affair. She took aboard 270 British women and children to be returned to the United Kingdom because of the situation in the Canal Zone, which has worsened rapidly since Egypt announcing the scrapping of the 1936 treaty with Britain and demanded that British troops leave the Canal Zone and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Held for Grand Jury

Achilles Naccarato, 57, of 61 Newkirk avenue, who was arrested at Marbletown Oct. 17 on a morals charge, was held for the grand jury following a hearing before City Judge Raymond J. Mino Saturday. He was represented by Attorney Robert M. Ortale. Sherwood E. Davis appeared for the district attorney's office. Authorities said the arrest followed complaints of the parents of young children. The defendant was released under $2,500 property bail.

Campaign Begins

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—The New York city anti-crime committee begins today an intensive campaign to raise $500,000 to finance the first two years of its operation. The committee, a private group, was organized last summer. It now has a full-time staff of trained investigators, lawyers and technicians.

Union Says Move

with the Civil Defense effort. It was pointed out that the local will offer the Orpheum Theatre, which they said is entirely unionized, or will furnish free of charge an operator from Local 637, to show civil defense pictures at the municipal auditorium.

2. Union members who have been picketing the local Walter Reade theatres since Sept. 22 are not being paid for picketing.

3. The controversy between the union and the theatre chain is "mostly a fight for recognition."

Appeal to All

Mrs. Phoebe Van Wagenen, president of striking Local B-42, said today the union is still appealing to all union members and the public to honor the picket line.

Persons attending Saturday night's meeting at 277 Fair street represented Electrical Workers Local 645; International Ladies Garment Workers; Local 534 of the Barbers union; the City Employes Union; Carpenters Union Local 251; Kingston Teachers Federation; Plumbers; Brickhandlers; Motion Picture Operators Local 637; Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and the unions representing workers at Hercules Powder Company and Electrol, Inc., Mrs. Van Wagenen reported.

Offer Withdrawn

Last Friday a union spokesman reported that Local B-42 officers had agreed not to picket the local Walter Reade theatres during contemplated Sunday noon showing of Civil Defense pictures. The following day, the offer was withdrawn by the local and Mrs. Van Wagenen announced that the withdrawal was, because the union officers believe the proposed showing of pictures free of charge was a "publicity stunt" on the part of Walter Reade. She suggested that the Orpheum Theatre or the municipal auditorium be used for showing the Civil Defense pictures.

Sherwood E. Davis, local Civil Defense director, has chosen to remain silent on the issue of showing Civil Defense pictures. Defense officials, who term the controversy "premature," point out that the desired pictures have not been obtained and no date for their showing has been set.

AEC Sets Off

in Nevada. Five others were set off at the AEC proving ground near here last winter, all before dawn. All were brilliantly visible for hundreds of miles.

The AEC made only this statement:

"One of the nuclear detonations announced by the Atomic Energy Commission on Aug. 28 was held this morning at the Nevada test site."

An AEC spokesman confirmed that the shot was made from the top of a 100-foot steel tower, similar to the structures used in the original A-bomb blast at Alamagordo, N. M., in 1945 and also later at Eniwetok.

The absence of any flash would stem to confirm speculation that the AEC has developed a smaller nuclear weapon. Speculation on such weapons has included artillery-type shells and guided missiles with atomic warheads.

This, however, was a stationary or fixed-point detonation and would indicate that the atomic scientists have developed what might be termed a baby A-bomb.

James A. Garfield was assassinated on July 2, 1881.

Heart Attack Is Fatal to Tavern Owner on Sunday

George Robinson, 50, proprietor of the Log Cabin on the Minnewaska Trail at Kerhonkson, died suddenly from a heart attack Sunday night while tending bar in the grill. He was seated on a stool behind the bar when he suddenly toppled to the floor. He had been under the care of a physican for some time for a heart condition.

Robinson, born in Brooklyn, had been proprietor of the Log Cabin for about five years, having taken over the place from the late William Whittaker who had operated the place for several years.

Robinson's brother, Robert Robinson was the operator of the car which plunged down the Minnewaska Trail hill at Kerhonkson Saturday morning fatally injuring Isidore Siegel, proprietor of a grocery store at the foot of the mountain road when the Robinson car crashed into the food market. It is believed that this accident in which his brother was involved had disturbed George Robinson considerably and may have been responsible for the attack Sunday night.

Verdict Is Given

Coroner Arthur C. Chipp of Kerhonkson was summoned and gave a verdict of death from an acute heart condition.

Robinson was unmarried. He and his brother, Robert, resided at the Log Cabin Inn. Beside his mother in Brooklyn, two sisters in Brooklyn, and three brothers survive, Robert of Kerhonkson and two in New Orleans. The body was taken to Brooklyn Sunday night and services will be held from the Jeffers Funeral Home, 4 Hamilton Parkway, Brooklyn. Burial will be in Washington Cemetery, Brooklyn.

Siegel Is Buried;

son, who was not hurt, later told sheriff's men that he was on his way to the grocery store, Siegel's Food Market, when the accident occurred.

Brakes Gave Way

Robert Robinson told Identification Officer Arthur H. Brown of the sheriff's office that he was coming down the mountain and about opposite the synagogue—approximately 400 feet from the bottom of the hill—the brakes of his 1948 Buick automobile gave way.

Robinson said he sounded his horn continuously and kept pumping the brake pedal. At the bottom of the hill, he attempted to swerve left on Main street, but was unable to make the complete turn and shot across the road.

Brown and the other investigators—Sheriff Cluett Schantz and Deputy Irving Gillman—said the Robinson auto squeezed between a parked automobile wrecking its right door that was open, and the buildings, finally plunging through the store front.

Robinson told sheriff's men the brakes on his automobile had been repaired on Wednesday.

Children Not Hurt

The parked auto was owned by Morris Simonofsky, a Kerhonkson area resident for 40 years. Simonofsky's two children had just gotten out of the right door of the car, but were miraculously unhurt, Brown reported.

After the Robinson automobile had been moved back out of the store enough to permit a doctor to treat the grocer, Siegel was found to be suffering from severe shock, a compound fracture of the left femur and a tramautic amputation of the right leg, according to the sheriff's office report.

Siegel is survived by his wife, Celia; two daughters, Ruth, at home, and Mrs. Seymour Graubard of Monticello; a son, Albert, of Kerhonkson, and two brothers, Charles, of South Fallsburgh and Louis Siegel of The Bronx.

Robinson was not held.

Tipster Taken to Park

Hackensack, N. J., Oct. 22 (AP)—Police took a blonde tipster to Cliffside Park today to check out her story of driving three men to a restaurant there the morning gambler Willie Moretti was killed. The blonde, Pat Clifford, 27, babbled her story to New York police over the weekend and put the finger on a "strong suspect" in the case, an unemployed tailor named Joseph Li Calsi. She said Li Calsi was one of the three men she drove to Joe's Restaurant in Cliffside Park. They met Moretti there with another man, she said. Minutes later Moretti was lying dead on the tiled floor of the restaurant with two bullets in his brain.

The head of a dog which was shot by local police Saturday after it had cornered a woman in the cellarway of Temple Emanuel on Abeel street, was sent to Albany by the county health department, it was learned today.

Police were notified at 11:37 a. m., Saturday that the dog would not permit the woman to move out of the cellarway and Officers Louis Sapp, Jr., and Thomas Tomshaw were dispatched to the scene.

The police report said there had been reports that the dog had bitten two or three children. The test at Albany will determine whether the animal was rabid.

Probe Underway Of Tillson Blaze

A fire which destroyed a woodhouse on the Arthur L. Merrihew property at Tillson Sunday night is under investigation by County Identification Officer Arthur Brown and Deputy Earl Conro. The fire was discovered about 9:20 p. m. and before the flames could be checked the two-story frame building was totally destroyed. The building about 24 by 30 feet in size and used for storage purposes was only about eight feet from the residence.

Members of the Tillson fire department, assisted by the Rosendale, Binnewater and Rifton departments which were summoned through Mutual Aid, battled the flames and prevented serious damage to the dwelling. The fire was so hot it scorched paint and broke windows in the Merrihew home but the firemen prevented serious damage. Chief Frank Minnikine of the Tillson department directed the work which saved the residence property.

At 2:10 a. m. today the sheriff's office was notified of the fire and asked to investigate the blaze. Deputy Arthur Smith went to the scene and made an inquiry and later Brown and Conro were dispatched to the scene.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Declines of around one to four points were common on the stock market today as a selling wave hit midway through a session already marked by losses.

The volume bulit up as selling orders poured onto the floor and the ticker tape fell as much as seven minutes behind floor transactions at times.

Chemicals led the slide but there were substantial losses in every major group.

Traders said the continuation of declines that began last Friday was due in large part to diappointment over the earnings of such large corporations as du Pont and General Electric.

Egypt Accuses Britain Anew of Aggressive Acts

Cairo, Oct. 22 (AP)—Egypt, her forces reported moving rapidly toward mobilization on a war basis, accused Britain anew today of "acts of aggression." Britain sent fresh troops into the disputed Suez Canal Zone and Cairo newspapers said an Egyptian guerrilla movement was forming to drive the Britons out.

The first battalion of the Cheshire Regiment arrived last night from Cyprus to reinforce Britain's Canal Zone troops. A British embassy spokesman, announcing this, said a battalion normally has a strength of 600 men, but would not say the strength of the reinforcing unit, a rifle battalion which arrived in the troopship Empress of Australia.

Note to British

Egypt's government sent a new note from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to the British Embassy, accusing the British of "new acts of aggression." It said:

"Not satisfied with defying the feelings of the civil population, British authorities in the Canal Zone wish also to provoke the Egyptian Army, which thus far has avoided all cause for friction."

The note said British troops Saturday at Port Said mortally wounded an Egyptian sentry at an Egyptian army camp, and also fired on an Egyptian sentry before Egypt's government office in Port Said.

A short time before, the Egyptian Government made public a note charging that the British actions in the Suez Canal area made it look as if the British were "moving in to conquer the country."

A British spokesman said the British Royal Navy now was controlling movements of shipping in the Suez area and carrying supplies for Britons guarding the strategic 104-mile canal, vital link in the commonwealth's lifeline.

Canal Is Guarded

British warships guarded both ends of the canal. A spokesman said, however, that this control did not extend to other shipping going through the canal. He said the privately operated Suez Canal Company remains in control of canal shipping.

The Empress of Australia's voyage was a shuttle affair. She took aboard 270 British women and children to be returned to the United Kingdom because of the situation in the Canal Zone, which has worsened rapidly since Egypt announcing the scrapping of the 1936 treaty with Britain and demanded that British troops leave the Canal Zone and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Held for Grand Jury

Achilles Naccarato, 57, of 61 Newkirk avenue, who was arrested at Marbletown Oct. 17 on a morals charge, was held for the grand jury following a hearing before City Judge Raymond J. Mino Saturday. He was represented by Attorney Robert M. Ortale. Sherwood E. Davis appeared for the district attorney's office. Authorities said the arrest followed complaints of the parents of young children. The defendant was released under $2,500 property bail.

Campaign Begins

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—The New York city anti-crime committee begins today an intensive campaign to raise $500,000 to finance the first two years of its operation. The committee, a private group, was organized last summer. It now has a full-time staff of trained investigators, lawyers and technicians.

Union Says Move

with the Civil Defense effort. It was pointed out that the local will offer the Orpheum Theatre, which they said is entirely unionized, or will furnish free of charge an operator from Local 637, to show civil defense pictures at the municipal auditorium.

2. Union members who have been picketing the local Walter Reade theatres since Sept. 22 are not being paid for picketing.

3. The controversy between the union and the theatre chain is "mostly a fight for recognition."

Appeal to All

Mrs. Phoebe Van Wagenen, president of striking Local B-42, said today the union is still appealing to all union members and the public to honor the picket line.

Persons attending Saturday night's meeting at 277 Fair street represented Electrical Workers Local 645; International Ladies Garment Workers; Local 534 of the Barbers union; the City Employes Union; Carpenters Union Local 251; Kingston Teachers Federation; Plumbers; Brickhandlers; Motion Picture Operators Local 637; Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and the unions representing workers at Hercules Powder Company and Electrol, Inc., Mrs. Van Wagenen reported.

Offer Withdrawn

Last Friday a union spokesman reported that Local B-42 officers had agreed not to picket the local Walter Reade theatres during contemplated Sunday noon showing of Civil Defense pictures. The following day, the offer was withdrawn by the local and Mrs. Van Wagenen announced that the withdrawal was, because the union officers believe the proposed showing of pictures free of charge was a "publicity stunt" on the part of Walter Reade. She suggested that the Orpheum Theatre or the municipal auditorium be used for showing the Civil Defense pictures.

Sherwood E. Davis, local Civil Defense director, has chosen to remain silent on the issue of showing Civil Defense pictures. Defense officials, who term the controversy "premature," point out that the desired pictures have not been obtained and no date for their showing has been set.

AEC Sets Off

in Nevada. Five others were set off at the AEC proving ground near here last winter, all before dawn. All were brilliantly visible for hundreds of miles.

The AEC made only this statement:

"One of the nuclear detonations announced by the Atomic Energy Commission on Aug. 28 was held this morning at the Nevada test site."

An AEC spokesman confirmed that the shot was made from the top of a 100-foot steel tower, similar to the structures used in the original A-bomb blast at Alamagordo, N. M., in 1945 and also later at Eniwetok.

The absence of any flash would stem to confirm speculation that the AEC has developed a smaller nuclear weapon. Speculation on such weapons has included artillery-type shells and guided missiles with atomic warheads.

This, however, was a stationary or fixed-point detonation and would indicate that the atomic scientists have developed what might be termed a baby A-bomb.

James A. Garfield was assassinated on July 2, 1881.

HARVEST TIME.

These are the days of the harvest
When apples have rouge-tinted cheeks
This is the Fall, when the cider mills call
And nature is dressed in antiques.
This is the season of suppers
When cooking is done at the grange
Tempting us there in the countryside air
With goodies, the ladies prepare.

This is the twilight of Summer
When meadows are startled with frost
Pumpkins will sigh as they settle in pie
Regretful that Summer is lost.
Fortunes are loaded in barrels
Where orchards relinquish their gold
This is the time for a poet to rhyme
The tale that is centuries old.

The harvest has come with its blessings
That farmer and city man reap
And mem'ries that play live in fragrance today . . .
The good earth has bargained for sleep.

Conservative Victory Is Forecast for Anglo Elections

London, Oct. 22 (AP) — British election campaigning moved into the closing stages today, and political forecasts were almost unanimous in predicting victory for the Conservative Party led by Winston Churchill.

Voters go to the polls at 7 a. m. (2 a. m. EST) Thursday.

Latest reports today from political soundings all over the United Kingdom, as reported by London newspapers, told the same story with varying details — a forecast the Consevatives will defeat the Labor Party.

Estimates of the expected Tory majority in the House of Commons ranged from 43 to 100 seats.

One Dissent

The single dissenting opinion came—as was expected—from the Daily Herald, a Labor Party journal.

It quoted Morgan Phillips, secretary of the Labor Party, as saying in a speech, "I believe we can win." But even the Herald noted that Phillips, unlike the forecasts of the Conservative and Independent observers, did not mention an estimated figure in the next House of Commons.

The majority of editors on local newspapers throughout Britain believe the Conservatives will capture the government by 76 seats, the Bournemouth Times reported. The editors were asked to forecast the result of the election in their own districts.

It is a notable fact that, throughout this campaign, the heavy weight of opinion—as reported in public opinion tests of various types and shapes—has favored the Conservatives.

The Herald dismissed these findings today with the line: "let them gallup—we can win."

Not every political observer in London, by any means, is convinced of the accuracy of the polls.

Since the great majority of British newspapers are Conservative, the feeling exists that these uniform results, reported day after day, may be part of a "bandwagon" technique. They report findings, by geographical areas, by agegroup and sex, and percentages of answers on various issues. Virtually every newspaper is conducting some type of poll.

The Conservative candidates were not campaigning on Sunday, in conformity with tradition.

But labor brought out some of its big ministerial guns.

One of the most significant statements came in a speech by Alfred Robens, Minister of Labor. Speaking in Northumberland, he said:

"If the tory party gets to power, there will be no hope of peace in industry, or loyalty of workers which has been given to the labor government.

Hot Battle Ahead Over Clark's Post In Next Session

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP) — A wave of protest against President Truman's decision to enter regular diplomatic relations with the Vatican promised today to touch off a heated battle when Congress reconvenes.

There was little if any criticism of the President's selection of Gen. Mark Clark as ambassador to the Roman Catholic Church state. The protests, some of them from the pulpit, were from Protestants who argued that the establishment of diplomatic relations violates the constitution injunction that church and state shall be separate.

The U. S. has never had a full ambassador at the Vatican, although Myron C. Taylor served there as personal representative of Presidents Roosevelt and Truman from 1940 until last Jan. 18, when he resigned.

Late Saturday Mr. Truman announced that he had selected Clark, an Episcopalian who now is commander of army field forces, to be ambassador. A White House statement said the President felt "the purpose of diplomacy and humanitarianism will be served" and added that direct relations with the Vatican will help coordinate a common fight against communism.

37 Others Have Representatives

The White House statement noted that 37 other nations maintain diplomatic representatives at the Vatican.

Unofficial comment from the Vatican indicated delight at Mr. Truman's move. That was the reaction of Catholic churchmen in this country.

Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York said the Vatican and the U. S. hold "identical objectives of peace." The Most Rev. Patrick J. McCormick, rector of Catholic University here, praised Clark and said "I am glad to see our country taking advantage of representation at the Vatican.

The opposing view was expressed by Protestants all over the nation, starting with Dr. Edward H. Pruden, Mr. Truman's own pastor at the First Baptist Church here.

"I did my utmost to point out the great dangers which seemed to me to lie" in the President's move, he said in a sermon yesterday. Dr. Pruden declined to elaborate when a reporter asked whether he meant he had talked to the President about the matter.

Refusal Is Urged

"Between now and the reconvening of Congress in January," Dr. Pruden said, "every citizen who shares my views must use all honorable means to persuade the members of the Senate to refuse confirmation of this nomination."

The Senate adjourned Saturday without acting on Clark's nomination, made only a few hours before. Some senators privately expressed displeasure at the timing of the move, which was such that the President can now give Clark a recess appointment. That likely will mean that he will already be on the job in Rome before the Senate gets around to considering the issue.

Lawmakers were reluctant to comment at all. Senator Hickenlooper (R.-Iowa) praised Clark and said he thinks Mr. Truman had a legal right to make an appointment." Senator H. Alexander Smith (R.-N. J.) said he was happy to have a direct contact with the Vatican. Senator McCarran (D.-Nev.) praised the move, but Senator Olin D. Johnston (D.-S. C.) said he was "very much opposed." Johnston said he thought there might be a move in Congress to cancel the move by withholding funds.

At Cleveland, delegates to the Seventh Day Adventists autumn council unanimously approved a resolution of "most earnest protest." The Brotherhood of the American Lutheran Church, meeting here, added its "most vehement opposition." Officials of the Presbyterian and American Congregational Churches wired protests to the White House. Individual congregations of other denominations in scattered areas endorsed expressions of disapproval.

GOP County Chiefs Meet in Albany

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP)—Republican leaders from New York's 62 counties meet here today to study the technique of winning elections.

The one-day session (9 a. m.) is designed to train the county leaders in setting up similar schools in their home areas. It is an outgrowth of "schools of politics" held in past years by the state Republican Committee at Hamilton College.

William L. Pfeiffer, state GOP chairman, says the schools will teach the priciples, aims and workings of GOP organizations and seek to interest more voters in taking active roles in their party.

They are planned to interest pre-voters, first voters, party workers and individuals desiring to work in the interest of their government, he added.

Each county is expected to complete its own school sessions before next April 1.

F. Clifton White of Ithaca, president of the Association of State Young Republican Clubs, is director of the leaders school. Miss Jane Todd, vice chairman of the state committee, was in charge of arrangements.

Rosendale, Glasco, Malden, dates same for all schools on November 6, all day.

Quarryville, Eddyville, Lake Katrine, East Kingston, Ulster Town Garage, all day.

Enough Is Enough

Budapest (AP)—The former Studio Cinema was renamed the Gorkij Cinema and will show only Russian-language films, the Hungarian newspaper Magyar Nemzet announced. This is supplementary to the Hungarian diet which includes compulsory study of Russian in the schools as the main dish.

The majority of editors on local newspapers throughout Britain believe the Conservatives will capture the government by 76 seats, the Bournemouth Times reported. The editors were asked to forecast the result of the election in their own districts.

It is a notable fact that, throughout this campaign, the heavy weight of opinion—as reported in public opinion tests of various types and shapes—has favored the Conservatives.

The Herald dismissed these findings today with the line: "let them gallup—we can win."

Not every political observer in London, by any means, is convinced of the accuracy of the polls.

Since the great majority of British newspapers are Conservative, the feeling exists that these uniform results, reported day after day, may be part of a "bandwagon" technique. They report findings, by geographical areas, by agegroup and sex, and percentages of answers on various issues. Virtually every newspaper is conducting some type of poll.

The Conservative candidates were not campaigning on Sunday, in conformity with tradition.

But labor brought out some of its big ministerial guns.

One of the most significant statements came in a speech by Alfred Robens, Minister of Labor. Speaking in Northumberland, he said:

"If the tory party gets to power, there will be no hope of peace in industry, or loyalty of workers which has been given to the labor government.

GOP County Chiefs Meet in Albany

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP)—Republican leaders from New York's 62 counties meet here today to study the technique of winning elections.

The one-day session (9 a. m.) is designed to train the county leaders in setting up similar schools in their home areas. It is an outgrowth of "schools of politics" held in past years by the state Republican Committee at Hamilton College.

William L. Pfeiffer, state GOP chairman, says the schools will teach the priciples, aims and workings of GOP organizations and seek to interest more voters in taking active roles in their party.

They are planned to interest pre-voters, first voters, party workers and individuals desiring to work in the interest of their government, he added.

Each county is expected to complete its own school sessions before next April 1.

F. Clifton White of Ithaca, president of the Association of State Young Republican Clubs, is director of the leaders school. Miss Jane Todd, vice chairman of the state committee, was in charge of arrangements.

CRITICAL DAYS FOR MIDDLE EAST

Before Egypt declared its intent to abrogate treaties with Britain covering Suez and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Egyptian leaders well understood that new Western proposals for a Middle East defense command were in the making.

These proposals now are on the record. Under them, Egypt is asked to join with the United States, Britain, France and Turkey in establishing a defensive bulwark against communism on the great land bridge between Europe and Asia.

British troops guarding the vital Suez Canal would be replaced by Allied forces. Egypt would supply military and air bases, and presumably would be granted substantial military and economic help. It would be elevated to a high status never hitherto attained by any Arab nation in the international sphere.

Despite foreknowledge of this plan, Egypt bluntly told Britain to get out. Since then, the Egyptian parliament has formally abrogated the treaties. And to cap it all, the government has rejected the Allied proposals for a joint defense command.

In none of this behavior are there any discernible elements of statesmanship. Whatever their legitimate national aspirations, the Egyptians need not have embarked on their present inflammatory course.

Many reasons may lie behind their irresponsible conduct. For one, the ruling Wafd Party is said to be declining in popularity. It may have decided to fan the nationalist flames to divert attention from its domestic failures.

The Egyptians may also have thought they had the British trapped. Having just seen Iran's weak and weepy Premier Mossadegh successfully defy the Lion, they may well have believed they could perform a similar feat.

On the other hand, they may have had no illusions about duplicating Mossadegh's showing. They may merely be stirring the present furore in the hope of increasing their bargaining power when the moment comes to discuss their role in a Middle East defense set-up.

Whether Egypt may actually gain more for having thus perilously unleashed boiling nationalist emotions is certainly questionable.

But there is no question at all about the determination of Britain, with the full backing of the U. S. and France, to remain in control of the Suez until a new Western force can move in. Neither riots, efforts at economic strangulation or the use of armed force are likely to dislodge the free nations from this bastion athwart one of the most crucial links in the world's waterways.

So if the Egyptians felt they would find the British an easy mark, they are doomed to disappointment. Nor are Britain and the United States minded to yield on the issue of future rule of the Sudan. What Egypt is asking is, in effect, that the colonial rule of the British be replaced by the colonial rule of the Egyptians.

Both London and Washington believe the Sudanese should have something to say about their future. Any solution that baldly hands the land over to Egypt does no justice to the Sudanese.

Critical days are ahead for the Middle East. If the area should now flare into war, the responsibility will not fall on the British, whatever the shortcomings of their colonial policies. It will rest squarely on the shoulders of demagogic Egyptians who have risked the larger interests of the free world community for their own selfish ends.

A cover girl requires no mysterious talent, it is said by one set of choosers of cover girls. She must merely be young, beautiful, sweet, lovely, graceful, photogenic, vivacious, pert, perky, effervescent, cute, smooth, dreamy and lucky. With all the rest, who would need luck?

The driver who explains that something is wrong with his car after it has gone past a red light is right. But the trouble probably is with the unit between the seat and the steering wheel.

LIMITED WARS

At the present moment, the United States and varied allies, Northern Korea and Soviet China are fighting in Korea; the French are fighting a Communist force in French Indo-China and live in expectation of a Soviet Chinese force attacking them; India and Pakistan are on the verge of war over Cashmir; the British are preparing to meet the Suez question by military force if they are pressed to the wall; yet the whole world is supposed to be at peace.

Such an event as the seizure of the property of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company would, in the past, have provoked military intervention which could have led to a general war. The assassination of the Austrian Archduke at Sarajevo was not of greater importance. Nor was the sinking of the battleship "Maine" historically more serious than the seizure of the Suez Canal.

But, the sinking of the "Maine" led to a limited war between the United States and Spain which ended Spain's colonial empire in America and Asia, and the shooting of the archduke produced World War I.

The fact of the matter seems to be that the great powers are war-weary and are prepared to accept peace, at this moment, on almost any terms short of invasion of their own territory. Great Britain, since Mary lost Calais (1558), has not accepted the umbrage meted out to her by the Moslems, and the United States, since the days of the Barbary Coast pirates (1800-1830), has not accepted such offenses as North Korea and Soviet China offer.

Yet, there is no general war. And although NATO is war-preparation and General Eisenhower's activities are aimed at Soviet Russia as a direct target, the response of the objective enemy has not been what might have been expected. Either Stalin is as war-weary as the western world is or his industries have not served him amply or he is biding his time as we are. Whatever the reason, the general war which in other eras came so readily, almost at the droop of a king's eyebrow, is held off.

From that standpoint, the fact that Sir Gladwyn Jebb and Dr. Mossadegh did come to the United Nations is of historic importance. In the "War of Jenkins' Ear," an obscure affair in the years 1739-1741, the British fought for much less than Dr. Mossadegh has done.

It is not necessary to be as brilliant an historian as Arnold Toynbee nor as great a stateman as Benjamin Disraeli to realize that we are living through a period of vast reorganization of political power, the emergence of new peoples, the resurrection of ancient nations and the shifting of the balances of authority from Europe to Esia. The process may take a century, even in these swift times, before stability reappears.

Usually, such eras as the age of Pericles in Greece or Augustus in Rome or Charlemagne in Europe are at the end rather than at the beginning of a great upsurge of peoples. Genghis Khan, whose movement of races from Asia to Europe was not unlike the effort of Stalin to build an overwhelming empire in the Eurasian heartland, ushered in the pressures which disturbed the then known world from the Pacific to the Mediterranean Sea and the Indian Ocean. Amazingly similar is the area currently affected, except that the United States, then unknown, is now included.

And that makes the difference: For while all the world may be war-weary, the United States can produce in unlimited quantities and in novel forms munitions of war, food and clothing so that the human mass, so often the determining factor in war or peace, is less important .

The United States is only 150,000,000 persons and the so-called free world in Europe runs about 275,000,000, making an outside total, say, of 425,000,000. The Soviet world is roughly 800,000,000 and the Moslem world about 200,000,000. The remaining free peoples of Asia, apart from the Moslems, will run to perhaps 270,000,000.

In the unbalanced situation, the greatest factor is the production of weapons of death, their degree of effectiveness, and the capacity of industry to keep pace with death-dealing novelties. Equally important is the provisioning not only of armies but of civilian populations. Food takes on altogether a new aspect in total war because even if production were possible, distribution becomes very difficult.

The balance of power is obviously in Asia among the Moslems. What they do with it will make the history of the next decades.

HOSPITAL TREATMENT OF ALCOHOLISM

Now that alcoholism is freely discussed and recognized as a defect in the make-up of the alcoholic, many common and uncommon causes are being found by digging deeply into his personal history.

At one time it was thought that it showed a lack of intelligence for anyone to allow himself to be made unconscious and not responsible for his actions by the use of alcohol. The work done at the Yale School for the Study of Alcohol, however, has clearly shown that intellect has no relation to alcoholism.

Fortunately our psychiatrists, busy as all of them are, are giving much time to the study of alcoholism and its treatment.

The report of a study, "Results in Hospital Treatment of Alcoholism in Males," by Drs. Curtis T. Prout, Edward I. Strongin, and Mary Alice White, White Plains, N. Y., appeared in American Journal of Psychiatry. They review the treatment and observations made upon one hundred men patients between August, 1940, and January, 1948, in a psychiatric hospital, who had been hospitalized because of overindulgence in alcoholic beverages. Of these 100 men, 89 were diagnosed as "Alcoholism without Mental Disorder." The other 11 were with alcoholic psychosis (mental disorder). "A review of the family background in these cases revealed a prevalence of suicide, alcoholism of various degrees of lack of capacity from mental illness. In nine families where alcoholism had existed a spontaneous reformation had taken place and five of the patients from these families were now abstaining."

Another interesting finding was that from the intellectual standpoint, these patients were above the average and 68 had attended college.

The oustanding physical abnormalities in order of frequency were tremors, high blood pressure, enlarged liver, neuritis. During their stay in hospital the percentage of accidents among them was high. Notwithstanding that there were so many university patients, the beginning of the drinking habit was due to something within themselves, not mixing with others.

In the management and treatment of these alcoholics, they were cared for in the same physical environment and surroundings as the other psychiatric patients. They were given exercise, massage, baths, occupational therapy, supervised social activities, physical education and foods rich in vitamins.

A follow-up study showed 25 recovered, 30 drinking but managing better, 21 still drinking but improved.

Not So Inscrutable at Present

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — Historians who evaluate the closing days of the 82nd Congress will probably make special note of the confirmation debate over Ambassador Philip Jessup because of two things:

It marked the high-water mark in this country of legislation through fear. Such senators as Gillette of Iowa and Smith of New Jersey were fully aware of the unfairness of the charges against Jessup but bowed to their fear of a small, intolerant, vociferous segment of the American public sometimes called McCarthyites.

It also marked a period when newspaper editors were criticizing the White House on freedom of the press, while one wing of the press seriously confused the public by distorting or suppressing important facts so necessary to a free press.

Unquestionably the timidity of certain senators was due in part to this confused and poorly informed state of public opinion. Unquestionably also the great majority of newsmen in this country are anxious to protect the truth of the press as well as its freedom; for without the first the second cannot survive.

Therefore, let's look at some of the facts in the Jessup hearing and see how brazenly some of them were twisted by certain publishers with political axes to grind. Take, as an example, the two biggest cities in the United States—New York and Chicago—and two newspaper groups that control a big slice of their circulation.

'World's Greatest Newspaper'

One is the "world's greatest newspaper," the Chicago Tribune, with a million circulation in the heart of the midwest, which also controls the heaviest circulating newspaper in the U.S.A., the New York News (Sunday circulation 4,123,276), together with the Washington Times-Herald.

The other is the New York World-Telegram, published by Roy Howard, high-ranking Republican and bitter critic of the State Department, who also publishes 18 other papers from Pittsburg to San Francisco and who is one of the largest stockholders in the United Press.

In contrast to the New York Times and the Herald Tribune, which were objective, here is how the World-Telegram lived up to its obligation of a free and truthful press in reporting the debate over Ambassador Jessup.

On Oct. 7—Harold Stassen accused Ambassador Jessup of lying. Jessup had sworn under oath that he did not attend a White House conference at which cutting off aid to Chiang Kai-shek was discussed.

"This matter goes to the heart of the veractiy of Jessup," Stassen insisted with great vigor. He stated that his memory of a conversation with the late Senator Vandenberg was "crystal clear"; that Vandenberg reported Jessup was present. Stassen demanded that Vandenberg's diary be produced.

Jessup Wasn't the Liar

On Oct. 9—The State Department showed senators confidential documents regarding conversations with other governments on the recognition of China. Even GOP Sen. Alexander Smith admitted that they showed Stassen to be wrong. Jessup had not favored recognition of Communist China.

This story, favorable to Jessup, the World-Telegram buried inside on page 19—Though failing to report that Republican Senator Smith supported Jessup on this point.

On Oct. 10—Warren Austin, a rock-ribbed ex-senator from Vermont, now ambassador to the United Nations, stated that UN records showed Jessup to have been in New York on the date Stassen claimed he was at the White House conference on China. This completely refuted Stassen's charge that Jessup was a liar.

However, the World-Telegram, after playing up the Stassen charge on page 1, buried Austin's refutation deep inside the paper, way back on page 28.

On Oct. 15—General Eisenhower confirmed Jessup's statement that on Feb. 5, 1949, the date of the White House conference on China, Jessup was in New York conferring with Eisenhower on extending his leave of absence from Columbia University. This again made Stassen the liar, not Jessup. The World-Telegram carried this on page 5.

Vandenberg's Diary

Meanwhile, Senator Vandenberg's diary had been made public, showing that Jessup was not at the White House conference—despite Stassen's statement that his memory was "crystal clear." Stassen had also claimed: "This goes to the heart of the veracity of Jessup." But despite this Stassen kept bringing new charges, while his friends on the World-Telegram kept on featuring them.

On Oct. 11—Stassen charged that Ambassador Jessup had urged recognition of Communist China at a State Department roundtable discussion. He demanded that the record of the meeting be published. "Every factor in my recollection of the round-table meeting can be substantiated by the transcript," said the ex-governor of Minnesota.

Next Day, Oct. 12—The State Department promptly published the transcript. It showed Jessup had taken no part in the discussion, that the State Department actually had opposed recognition of Communist China, and that those favoring recognition were private citizens, led by business executives William Herod, president of the export branch of General Electric, and William A. Robertson of American and Foreign Power, one of the biggest utilities on Wall street.

Despite this, the World-Telegram next day featured an editorial blasting the State Department. The same issue also carried a United Press report that "Stassen offers new evidence against Jessup," together with a glowing feature story on Stassen's career from poor farm boy to governor of Minnesota under the headline: "Harold Stassen's Career Is a Real-Life Horatio Alger Story."

The same issue also featured a glowing eulogy of Stassen's book, though it turned out to be a mere collection of Stassen quotations.

This is how one powerful publisher stacked the news for the American public, thus contributing to the confusion of the reader, the intimidation of the Senate, and the difficulty of the great majority of fair-minded publishers to champion freedom of the press.

The story of another powerful publisher will follow shortly.

Engineer Could Neither Read or Write

James Brindley (1716-1772), father of English canal navigation and one of the greatest engineers of his time, never went to school and was totally illiterate. He built the Manchester Canal, the first English canal of any importance; the Bridgewater Canal, the Trent and Mersey Canal and many others. Altogether he built 365 miles of canals, always doing the work in his head, never any calculation on paper or drawings. In case of special difficulty he would carve a model out of cheese. All his projects were executed with striking orignality. He was one of the most astounding geniuses of the 18th century.

Truman's Appointment of Clark Is Seen as Move Helping Democratic Forces

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 22—The biggest piece of political news that has developed in many months is the announcement from the White House that President Truman has formally nominated an ambassador to the Vatican.

This does not necessarily mean, as some observers have said already, a stimulus to friction between Protestants and Catholics in America. For the majority of Americans are not swayed by such prejudices and the plan has yet to go through Congress. But it does mean a piece of political maneuvering by President Truman in behalf of the Democratic Party which politicians will concede does play a part in election campaigns.

Thus, many of the big-city machines or organizations which can swing the electoral votes of several large states are led by Democrats who happen to be Catholics. There is no such thing as a Catholic vote or a Protestant vote or Jewish vote so far as the nation is concerned but politicians say in marginal contests in certain localities the size of some one religious group is just enough to wield the balance of power.

It has been recorded that for the last several months Protestant groups have been arguing with President Truman publicly and privately that by sending an ambassador to the Vatican he would be recognizing a church and committing the United States to a doctrine which is the opposite of that in vogue—namely, separation of church and state.

Mr. Truman has been considering the problem ever since Myron Taylor, former head of the U. S. Steel Corporation, who was not technically an ambassador but a "personal representative of the President," came home from the mission to the Vatican which the late President Roosevelt originally entrusted to him. Congress in that instance was by-passed and the embarrassment of a political contest on the issue was avoided because the White House never asked for an appropriation to pay the expenses of the ambassador to the Vatican. It so happened that Mr. Taylor was wealthy enough to pay his own expenses in Italy where he had had a winter home for many years.

Now, however, the situation is different. Congress will have to vote funds. The Senate will have to confirm or reject the nomination of Gen. Mark Clark—wartime commander in Italy—who has been nominated as an ambassador if formal diplomatic relations which were interrupted in 1868 are to be resumed. The President might give General Clark a recess appointment but then the general loses his army pay unless Congress passes a special act and that can't happen till January when the nomintion would have to go to the Senate again.

It does look as if there will be three ways by which the issue will arise—on General Clark's pay, on funds for the new embassy and staff, and on the nomination of the ambassador himself. It seems likely that if the members of Congress want to kill the plan they will seek ways to avoid giving offense to constituents who happen to be Catholics vitaly concern about the issue. If they hold up the change in General Clark's pay, for example, they might fi nd technical grounds for doing it which they will say has nothing to do with the embassy he is filling. There lately has been sentiment against sending any military men to diplomatic posts of which there have been a number so designated since the war.

Maybe Mr. Truman, who is a shrewd politician, doesn't really expect the plan to go through at all but is contriving to be able to say that at least he made a sincere gesture and that congress frustrated his plan. Maybe he is thinking of the embarassmnt he is going to cause certain Republicans who run for congress in 1952 when the Democratic nominees take a look at the way such Republicans voted on the issue of sending an envoy to the Vatican. As a vehicle of political mischief the issue has real potentialities and Mr. Truman is well aware of that fact.

On its merits and quite apart from politics, the question of sending an ambassador to the Vatican is rightly defended on the ground that the Catholic Church throughout the world and especially behind the "iron curtain" has a vast network of important sources from which diplomatic information of value to the United States in fighting communism is obtained. That is the official reason given my President Truman now and it resembles the reason the late President Roosevelt gave when he sought the benefits of Vatican information from enemy countries during wartime.

The mystery is why the President has not pressed that same point during the last year and a half during which the vacancy caused by Mr. Taylor's resignation has been left unfilled. The correspondent predicted in a dispatch before the Korean war began that the adminnistration eventually would furnish aid to Spain and wound send an envoy to the Vatican because domestic political considerations would influence such a decision as an offset to the State Department's apparent desire then to recognize the Chinese Communists. There is less interest now in recognizing the Chinese Communists but there is considerable interest on the part of the President and the state department in breaking down the McCarthy influence among Catholics. Also if the President now gives a recess nomination to General Clark can there be criticism from the McCarthy followers if the President gives a recess appointment to Ambassador Jessup?

So the latest bit of political countermaneuvering will be regarded in political circles as both adroit and clever though it is too early to say how strong a retaliatory current of hostility it will provoke in the camp of those who feel deeply that the resumption of diplomatic relations with the Vatican is a mistake. It could be that the influence of such an episode among opponents and proponents has been exaggerated. Other issues doubtless will still determine whether the present administration as a whole shall be endorsed or rejected at the polls in 1952.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Oct. 21—The memories of Jesse Jones, entitled "Fifty Billion Dollars," add to the evidence that Franklin D. Roosevelt was a crook in the common understanding of the word. Mr. Jones corroborates proof, already entered in the record through these dispatches, that the man who gave the Soviet Empire the veto over our future, was a swindler in the case of the deadbeat loans of his son, Elliott, and a common grafter in other situations. Mr. Jones thus belatedly has placed the story between boards with the assistance of Edward Angly, a journalist of note, but it might have been better had he told us in time to arouse public opposition against the third term and the fourth.

Mr. Jones stuck around until Roosevelt finally shrugged him out of office in favor of the same drooling slobs who had made himself notorious in the intimate circle of the great conspiracy as the author of a sheaf of imbecilic letters to Nicholas Roerich. But Jones was holding the fort for us in a manner of speaking. He thought he could do more good inside although facts which he tells us now might have caused a revulsion sufficient to make the difference in the election returns.

Mr. Jones accuses Roosevelt of trying to persuade him to buy the Empire State Building through the RFC and accuses Al Smith of engaging an agent to promote the sale because the Empire State was a financial flop. Smith, who owned 10 per cent of it, wanted to unload.

Smith and John J. Raskob, who owned82 per cent and the second mortgage, had arranged for Roosevelt to run for governor of New York in 1928 when Smith was the presidential candidate. Raskob guaranteed $250,000 that year to bail Roosevelt out of his personal debts in his Warm Springs, Ga., real estate promotion (his creditor was his mother) and on that condition Roosevelt took the nomination. He won and went on to become president.

Jones says Roosevelt said to him "I would like to do something for Al Smith. He is broke and has an expensive family." Jones says he thinks Smith was drawing $50,000 a year as president of the Empire State. Jones turned down the proposal for many reasons but he says Smith's agent told him he was to get $50,000 for compiling the necessary information and trying to peddle the building even though the deal failed.

Roosevelt persisted, Mr. Jones says, but he dropped the matter.

"But I am sure he was displeased and that he never forgave me for not doing it. We had no direct authority to buy the building but he thought I could do it if I wanted to. I probably could have but I did not think I should. Governor Smith came to see me two or three times during the negotiations and indicated

Q—How does a lightning rod keep lightning away from a building?

A—The lightning rod does not keep lightning away, nor does it draw lightning to a structure. What it does is to provide an easy path if lightning does strike, so it may travel safely to the ground.

CRITICAL DAYS FOR MIDDLE EAST

Before Egypt declared its intent to abrogate treaties with Britain covering Suez and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Egyptian leaders well understood that new Western proposals for a Middle East defense command were in the making.

These proposals now are on the record. Under them, Egypt is asked to join with the United States, Britain, France and Turkey in establishing a defensive bulwark against communism on the great land bridge between Europe and Asia.

British troops guarding the vital Suez Canal would be replaced by Allied forces. Egypt would supply military and air bases, and presumably would be granted substantial military and economic help. It would be elevated to a high status never hitherto attained by any Arab nation in the international sphere.

Despite foreknowledge of this plan, Egypt bluntly told Britain to get out. Since then, the Egyptian parliament has formally abrogated the treaties. And to cap it all, the government has rejected the Allied proposals for a joint defense command.

In none of this behavior are there any discernible elements of statesmanship. Whatever their legitimate national aspirations, the Egyptians need not have embarked on their present inflammatory course.

Many reasons may lie behind their irresponsible conduct. For one, the ruling Wafd Party is said to be declining in popularity. It may have decided to fan the nationalist flames to divert attention from its domestic failures.

The Egyptians may also have thought they had the British trapped. Having just seen Iran's weak and weepy Premier Mossadegh successfully defy the Lion, they may well have believed they could perform a similar feat.

On the other hand, they may have had no illusions about duplicating Mossadegh's showing. They may merely be stirring the present furore in the hope of increasing their bargaining power when the moment comes to discuss their role in a Middle East defense set-up.

Whether Egypt may actually gain more for having thus perilously unleashed boiling nationalist emotions is certainly questionable.

But there is no question at all about the determination of Britain, with the full backing of the U. S. and France, to remain in control of the Suez until a new Western force can move in. Neither riots, efforts at economic strangulation or the use of armed force are likely to dislodge the free nations from this bastion athwart one of the most crucial links in the world's waterways.

So if the Egyptians felt they would find the British an easy mark, they are doomed to disappointment. Nor are Britain and the United States minded to yield on the issue of future rule of the Sudan. What Egypt is asking is, in effect, that the colonial rule of the British be replaced by the colonial rule of the Egyptians.

Both London and Washington believe the Sudanese should have something to say about their future. Any solution that baldly hands the land over to Egypt does no justice to the Sudanese.

Critical days are ahead for the Middle East. If the area should now flare into war, the responsibility will not fall on the British, whatever the shortcomings of their colonial policies. It will rest squarely on the shoulders of demagogic Egyptians who have risked the larger interests of the free world community for their own selfish ends.

LIMITED WARS

At the present moment, the United States and varied allies, Northern Korea and Soviet China are fighting in Korea; the French are fighting a Communist force in French Indo-China and live in expectation of a Soviet Chinese force attacking them; India and Pakistan are on the verge of war over Cashmir; the British are preparing to meet the Suez question by military force if they are pressed to the wall; yet the whole world is supposed to be at peace.

Such an event as the seizure of the property of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company would, in the past, have provoked military intervention which could have led to a general war. The assassination of the Austrian Archduke at Sarajevo was not of greater importance. Nor was the sinking of the battleship "Maine" historically more serious than the seizure of the Suez Canal.

But, the sinking of the "Maine" led to a limited war between the United States and Spain which ended Spain's colonial empire in America and Asia, and the shooting of the archduke produced World War I.

The fact of the matter seems to be that the great powers are war-weary and are prepared to accept peace, at this moment, on almost any terms short of invasion of their own territory. Great Britain, since Mary lost Calais (1558), has not accepted the umbrage meted out to her by the Moslems, and the United States, since the days of the Barbary Coast pirates (1800-1830), has not accepted such offenses as North Korea and Soviet China offer.

Yet, there is no general war. And although NATO is war-preparation and General Eisenhower's activities are aimed at Soviet Russia as a direct target, the response of the objective enemy has not been what might have been expected. Either Stalin is as war-weary as the western world is or his industries have not served him amply or he is biding his time as we are. Whatever the reason, the general war which in other eras came so readily, almost at the droop of a king's eyebrow, is held off.

From that standpoint, the fact that Sir Gladwyn Jebb and Dr. Mossadegh did come to the United Nations is of historic importance. In the "War of Jenkins' Ear," an obscure affair in the years 1739-1741, the British fought for much less than Dr. Mossadegh has done.

It is not necessary to be as brilliant an historian as Arnold Toynbee nor as great a stateman as Benjamin Disraeli to realize that we are living through a period of vast reorganization of political power, the emergence of new peoples, the resurrection of ancient nations and the shifting of the balances of authority from Europe to Esia. The process may take a century, even in these swift times, before stability reappears.

Usually, such eras as the age of Pericles in Greece or Augustus in Rome or Charlemagne in Europe are at the end rather than at the beginning of a great upsurge of peoples. Genghis Khan, whose movement of races from Asia to Europe was not unlike the effort of Stalin to build an overwhelming empire in the Eurasian heartland, ushered in the pressures which disturbed the then known world from the Pacific to the Mediterranean Sea and the Indian Ocean. Amazingly similar is the area currently affected, except that the United States, then unknown, is now included.

And that makes the difference: For while all the world may be war-weary, the United States can produce in unlimited quantities and in novel forms munitions of war, food and clothing so that the human mass, so often the determining factor in war or peace, is less important .

The United States is only 150,000,000 persons and the so-called free world in Europe runs about 275,000,000, making an outside total, say, of 425,000,000. The Soviet world is roughly 800,000,000 and the Moslem world about 200,000,000. The remaining free peoples of Asia, apart from the Moslems, will run to perhaps 270,000,000.

In the unbalanced situation, the greatest factor is the production of weapons of death, their degree of effectiveness, and the capacity of industry to keep pace with death-dealing novelties. Equally important is the provisioning not only of armies but of civilian populations. Food takes on altogether a new aspect in total war because even if production were possible, distribution becomes very difficult.

The balance of power is obviously in Asia among the Moslems. What they do with it will make the history of the next decades.

HOSPITAL TREATMENT OF ALCOHOLISM

Now that alcoholism is freely discussed and recognized as a defect in the make-up of the alcoholic, many common and uncommon causes are being found by digging deeply into his personal history.

At one time it was thought that it showed a lack of intelligence for anyone to allow himself to be made unconscious and not responsible for his actions by the use of alcohol. The work done at the Yale School for the Study of Alcohol, however, has clearly shown that intellect has no relation to alcoholism.

Fortunately our psychiatrists, busy as all of them are, are giving much time to the study of alcoholism and its treatment.

The report of a study, "Results in Hospital Treatment of Alcoholism in Males," by Drs. Curtis T. Prout, Edward I. Strongin, and Mary Alice White, White Plains, N. Y., appeared in American Journal of Psychiatry. They review the treatment and observations made upon one hundred men patients between August, 1940, and January, 1948, in a psychiatric hospital, who had been hospitalized because of overindulgence in alcoholic beverages. Of these 100 men, 89 were diagnosed as "Alcoholism without Mental Disorder." The other 11 were with alcoholic psychosis (mental disorder). "A review of the family background in these cases revealed a prevalence of suicide, alcoholism of various degrees of lack of capacity from mental illness. In nine families where alcoholism had existed a spontaneous reformation had taken place and five of the patients from these families were now abstaining."

Another interesting finding was that from the intellectual standpoint, these patients were above the average and 68 had attended college.

The oustanding physical abnormalities in order of frequency were tremors, high blood pressure, enlarged liver, neuritis. During their stay in hospital the percentage of accidents among them was high. Notwithstanding that there were so many university patients, the beginning of the drinking habit was due to something within themselves, not mixing with others.

In the management and treatment of these alcoholics, they were cared for in the same physical environment and surroundings as the other psychiatric patients. They were given exercise, massage, baths, occupational therapy, supervised social activities, physical education and foods rich in vitamins.

A follow-up study showed 25 recovered, 30 drinking but managing better, 21 still drinking but improved.

Not So Inscrutable at Present

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — Historians who evaluate the closing days of the 82nd Congress will probably make special note of the confirmation debate over Ambassador Philip Jessup because of two things:

It marked the high-water mark in this country of legislation through fear. Such senators as Gillette of Iowa and Smith of New Jersey were fully aware of the unfairness of the charges against Jessup but bowed to their fear of a small, intolerant, vociferous segment of the American public sometimes called McCarthyites.

It also marked a period when newspaper editors were criticizing the White House on freedom of the press, while one wing of the press seriously confused the public by distorting or suppressing important facts so necessary to a free press.

Unquestionably the timidity of certain senators was due in part to this confused and poorly informed state of public opinion. Unquestionably also the great majority of newsmen in this country are anxious to protect the truth of the press as well as its freedom; for without the first the second cannot survive.

Therefore, let's look at some of the facts in the Jessup hearing and see how brazenly some of them were twisted by certain publishers with political axes to grind. Take, as an example, the two biggest cities in the United States—New York and Chicago—and two newspaper groups that control a big slice of their circulation.

'World's Greatest Newspaper'

One is the "world's greatest newspaper," the Chicago Tribune, with a million circulation in the heart of the midwest, which also controls the heaviest circulating newspaper in the U.S.A., the New York News (Sunday circulation 4,123,276), together with the Washington Times-Herald.

The other is the New York World-Telegram, published by Roy Howard, high-ranking Republican and bitter critic of the State Department, who also publishes 18 other papers from Pittsburg to San Francisco and who is one of the largest stockholders in the United Press.

In contrast to the New York Times and the Herald Tribune, which were objective, here is how the World-Telegram lived up to its obligation of a free and truthful press in reporting the debate over Ambassador Jessup.

On Oct. 7—Harold Stassen accused Ambassador Jessup of lying. Jessup had sworn under oath that he did not attend a White House conference at which cutting off aid to Chiang Kai-shek was discussed.

"This matter goes to the heart of the veractiy of Jessup," Stassen insisted with great vigor. He stated that his memory of a conversation with the late Senator Vandenberg was "crystal clear"; that Vandenberg reported Jessup was present. Stassen demanded that Vandenberg's diary be produced.

Jessup Wasn't the Liar

On Oct. 9—The State Department showed senators confidential documents regarding conversations with other governments on the recognition of China. Even GOP Sen. Alexander Smith admitted that they showed Stassen to be wrong. Jessup had not favored recognition of Communist China.

This story, favorable to Jessup, the World-Telegram buried inside on page 19—Though failing to report that Republican Senator Smith supported Jessup on this point.

On Oct. 10—Warren Austin, a rock-ribbed ex-senator from Vermont, now ambassador to the United Nations, stated that UN records showed Jessup to have been in New York on the date Stassen claimed he was at the White House conference on China. This completely refuted Stassen's charge that Jessup was a liar.

However, the World-Telegram, after playing up the Stassen charge on page 1, buried Austin's refutation deep inside the paper, way back on page 28.

On Oct. 15—General Eisenhower confirmed Jessup's statement that on Feb. 5, 1949, the date of the White House conference on China, Jessup was in New York conferring with Eisenhower on extending his leave of absence from Columbia University. This again made Stassen the liar, not Jessup. The World-Telegram carried this on page 5.

Vandenberg's Diary

Meanwhile, Senator Vandenberg's diary had been made public, showing that Jessup was not at the White House conference—despite Stassen's statement that his memory was "crystal clear." Stassen had also claimed: "This goes to the heart of the veracity of Jessup." But despite this Stassen kept bringing new charges, while his friends on the World-Telegram kept on featuring them.

On Oct. 11—Stassen charged that Ambassador Jessup had urged recognition of Communist China at a State Department round-table discussion. He demanded that the record of the meeting be published. "Every factor in my recollection of the round-table meeting can be substantiated by the transcript," said the ex-governor of Minnesota.

Next Day, Oct. 12—The State Department promptly published the transcript. It showed Jessup had taken no part in the discussion, that the State Department actually had opposed recognition of Communist China, and that those favoring recognition were private citizens, led by business executives William Herod, president of the export branch of General Electric, and William A. Robertson of American and Foreign Power, one of the biggest utilities on Wall street.

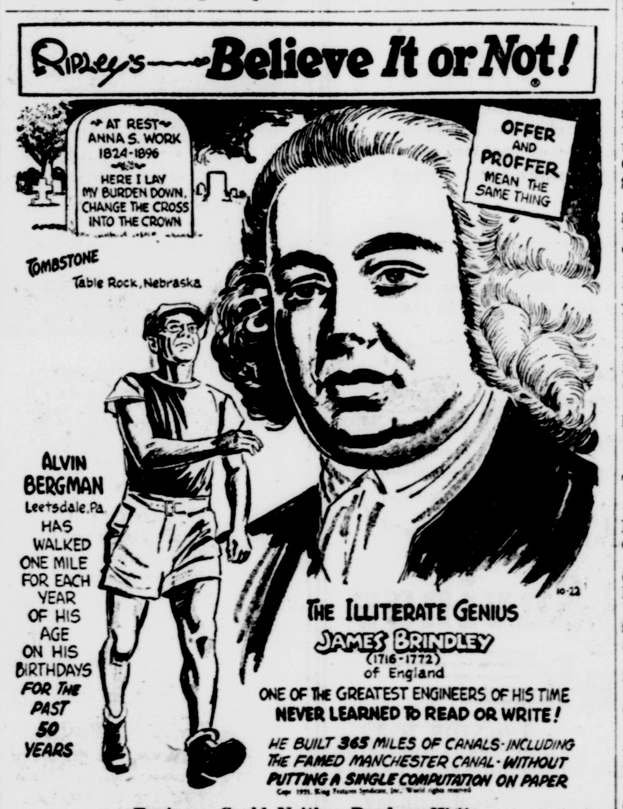

Despite this, the World-Telegram next day featured an editorial blasting the State Department. The same issue also carried a United Press report that "Stassen offers new evidence against Jessup," together with a glowing feature story on Stassen's career from poor farm boy to governor of Minnesota under the headline: "Harold Stassen's Career Is a Real-Life Horatio Alger Story."

The same issue also featured a glowing eulogy of Stassen's book, though it turned out to be a mere collection of Stassen quotations.

This is how one powerful publisher stacked the news for the American public, thus contributing to the confusion of the reader, the intimidation of the Senate, and the difficulty of the great majority of fair-minded publishers to champion freedom of the press.

The story of another powerful publisher will follow shortly.

Engineer Could Neither Read or Write

James Brindley (1716-1772), father of English canal navigation and one of the greatest engineers of his time, never went to school and was totally illiterate. He built the Manchester Canal, the first English canal of any importance; the Bridgewater Canal, the Trent and Mersey Canal and many others. Altogether he built 365 miles of canals, always doing the work in his head, never any calculation on paper or drawings. In case of special difficulty he would carve a model out of cheese. All his projects were executed with striking orignality. He was one of the most astounding geniuses of the 18th century.

Truman's Appointment of Clark Is Seen as Move Helping Democratic Forces

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 22—The biggest piece of political news that has developed in many months is the announcement from the White House that President Truman has formally nominated an ambassador to the Vatican.

This does not necessarily mean, as some observers have said already, a stimulus to friction between Protestants and Catholics in America. For the majority of Americans are not swayed by such prejudices and the plan has yet to go through Congress. But it does mean a piece of political maneuvering by President Truman in behalf of the Democratic Party which politicians will concede does play a part in election campaigns.

Thus, many of the big-city machines or organizations which can swing the electoral votes of several large states are led by Democrats who happen to be Catholics. There is no such thing as a Catholic vote or a Protestant vote or Jewish vote so far as the nation is concerned but politicians say in marginal contests in certain localities the size of some one religious group is just enough to wield the balance of power.

It has been recorded that for the last several months Protestant groups have been arguing with President Truman publicly and privately that by sending an ambassador to the Vatican he would be recognizing a church and committing the United States to a doctrine which is the opposite of that in vogue—namely, separation of church and state.

Mr. Truman has been considering the problem ever since Myron Taylor, former head of the U. S. Steel Corporation, who was not technically an ambassador but a "personal representative of the President," came home from the mission to the Vatican which the late President Roosevelt originally entrusted to him. Congress in that instance was by-passed and the embarrassment of a political contest on the issue was avoided because the White House never asked for an appropriation to pay the expenses of the ambassador to the Vatican. It so happened that Mr. Taylor was wealthy enough to pay his own expenses in Italy where he had had a winter home for many years.

Now, however, the situation is different. Congress will have to vote funds. The Senate will have to confirm or reject the nomination of Gen. Mark Clark—wartime commander in Italy—who has been nominated as an ambassador if formal diplomatic relations which were interrupted in 1868 are to be resumed. The President might give General Clark a recess appointment but then the general loses his army pay unless Congress passes a special act and that can't happen till January when the nomintion would have to go to the Senate again.

It does look as if there will be three ways by which the issue will arise—on General Clark's pay, on funds for the new embassy and staff, and on the nomination of the ambassador himself. It seems likely that if the members of Congress want to kill the plan they will seek ways to avoid giving offense to constituents who happen to be Catholics vitaly concern about the issue. If they hold up the change in General Clark's pay, for example, they might find technical grounds for doing it which they will say has nothing to do with the embassy he is filling. There lately has been sentiment against sending any military men to diplomatic posts of which there have been a number so designated since the war.

Maybe Mr. Truman, who is a shrewd politician, doesn't really expect the plan to go through at all but is contriving to be able to say that at least he made a sincere gesture and that congress frustrated his plan. Maybe he is thinking of the embarassmnt he is going to cause certain Republicans who run for congress in 1952 when the Democratic nominees take a look at the way such Republicans voted on the issue of sending an envoy to the Vatican. As a vehicle of political mischief the issue has real potentialities and Mr. Truman is well aware of that fact.

On its merits and quite apart from politics, the question of sending an ambassador to the Vatican is rightly defended on the ground that the Catholic Church throughout the world and especially behind the "iron curtain" has a vast network of important sources from which diplomatic information of value to the United States in fighting communism is obtained. That is the official reason given my President Truman now and it resembles the reason the late President Roosevelt gave when he sought the benefits of Vatican information from enemy countries during wartime.

The mystery is why the President has not pressed that same point during the last year and a half during which the vacancy caused by Mr. Taylor's resignation has been left unfilled. The correspondent predicted in a dispatch before the Korean war began that the adminnistration eventually would furnish aid to Spain and wound send an envoy to the Vatican because domestic political considerations would influence such a decision as an offset to the State Department's apparent desire then to recognize the Chinese Communists. There is less interest now in recognizing the Chinese Communists but there is considerable interest on the part of the President and the state department in breaking down the McCarthy influence among Catholics. Also if the President now gives a recess nomination to General Clark can there be criticism from the McCarthy followers if the President gives a recess appointment to Ambassador Jessup?

So the latest bit of political countermaneuvering will be regarded in political circles as both adroit and clever though it is too early to say how strong a retaliatory current of hostility it will provoke in the camp of those who feel deeply that the resumption of diplomatic relations with the Vatican is a mistake. It could be that the influence of such an episode among opponents and proponents has been exaggerated. Other issues doubtless will still determine whether the present administration as a whole shall be endorsed or rejected at the polls in 1952.

Whereas, the youth of our times face problems great and complex, and are in need of sound direction, guidance and counsel through such leadership as the CYO gives; and

Whereas, it is the responsibility of every American citizen to help young Americans through a sound program in which interesting activities of all kinds are further enhanced with the contributions of training in character and self-discipline; and

THOMAS J. CURRAN

Abstract of Proposed Amendment Number One

The purpose and effect of this proposed amendment is to permit electors in the actual military service of the state or of the United States in the army, navy, air force or any branch thereof or in the coast guard, to vote, despite absence from their election districts, in time of peace as well as war, and to give the same right to a spouse, parent or child of such electors accompanying them if a qualified voter and a resident of the same election district. Form of Submission of Proposed Amendment Number Six

Shall the proposed amendment of article eight, sections four, five, seven and eleven, of the constitution, in relation to restrictions on the powers of counties, cities, towns, villages, and certain school districts to contract indebtedness and to impose taxes upon real estate be approved?

Abstract of Proposed Amendment Number Seven

The purpose and effect of this proposed amendment is to increase the monetary jurisdiction of the city court of the city of New York from $3,000 to $6,000. It also revises Section 15 to eliminate obsolete provisions.

Form of Submission of Proposed Amendment Number Seven

Shall the proposed amendment of article six, section fifteen, of the constitution, in relation to increasing the monetary jurisdiction of the city court of the city of New York, be approved?

Abstract of Proposed Amendment Number Eight

The purpose and effect of this proposed amendment is to permit judges of the court of appeals and the justices of the supreme court to serve in any capacity in the armed forces of the United States of America and of the state of New York and to authorize the legislature to provide for temporary judges or justices to serve during their absence in such service. Presently such judges and justices are prohibited from holding any other public office or trust, except that they may serve as members of a constitutional convention.

Form of Submission of Proposed Amendment Number Eight

Here's why Fordomatic puts them all in the past!

For the past 10 months, automotive writers and engineers have been raving about a new kind of automatic driving . . . and here's why you get it only in Ford Cars:

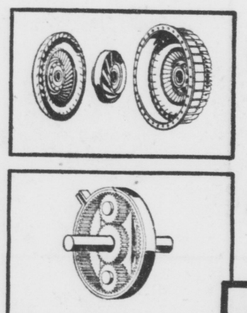

All the power you need when you need it is yours with Fordomatic. You'll find it the most thrilling experience you ever had. You'll discover the advantages of having . . . the smooth going that automatic drives employing torque converters can give you . . . plus the zip, control, and savings that cars with automatic gears can give you. For Fordomatic combines the finer features of all other automatic drives!

IT GIVES YOU INSTANT "GO"!
Because Fordomatic gives you a combination of the best features of all other automatic drives, it delivers instant "go" for exceptionally easy, exceptionally smooth starting, passing, and hill climbing. Its extra Intermediate Gear gives you a push of extra power any time you want it . . . extra braking power, too, that's outstandingly smooth.

Some automatics have this
The automatic drive some cars offer you is a torque converter which multiplies torque without the use of gears. Its advantage is a smooth flow of power. Its disadvantage is a smaller range of torque multiplication which requires more power from the engine and an uneconomical axle ratio which increases costs.

Some automatics have this
Other cars offer an automatic drive that uses automatic gears (as illustrated in simplified form at right) instead of a torque converter. The advantage here is more "go," more control and greater economy. The disadvantage is that this system is not as smooth, nor as jerk-free as a torque converter.

But Fordomatic has both
Yes, Fordomatic has a torque converter plus automatic gears. It brings you only the advantages of both drives and eliminates the disadvantages.
Unlike cars with only a torque converter (which start and cruise all in one drive gear), Fordomatic starts fast and smooth in Intermediate Gear then shifts itself into Drive Gear.

IT PRACTICALLY DRIVES ITSELF!
Fordomatic drives your car for you better than you could ever drive it yourself. It brings you a completely new thrill in no-shift-lever, no-clutch-pedal driving, because its development began where all other automatic drives left off!

A GAS-SAVING POWERHOUSE!
Fordomatic's numerically lower rear axle ratio gives the fewest engine revolutions per mile of any car in its field. Fordomatic's automatic intermediate gear provides smooth, fast economical "getaway" without wasteful engine racing.

Whereas, the youth of our times face problems great and complex, and are in need of sound direction, guidance and counsel through such leadership as the CYO gives; and

Whereas, it is the responsibility of every American citizen to help young Americans through a sound program in which interesting activities of all kinds are further enhanced with the contributions of training in character and self-discipline; and

Whereas, the Catholic Youth Organization meets the needs of our own people through a four fold program of spiritual, cultural, social and athletic activities under the leadership of priests and laity who guide the program, and in so doing keeps us aware that one is never too young to be a good citizen; and

Increase Is Estimated

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—Secretary of Labor Tobin estimates that the number of defense jobs will increase by 4,500,000 during the next year. In a manpower report issued yesterday Tobin said also that 2,000,000 additional defense workers will be needed by the end of 1951. There were only 2,700,000 persons employed in defense jobs in 1950, the secretary said.

Abstract of Proposed Amendment Number Six

The purpose and effect of this proposed amendment is to base municipal debt limitations upon a five year average of full valuation of taxable real estate rather than upon average assessed valuation as at present; to lower the percentage prescribed in the debt limitation for counties, other than Nassau, and for towns and villages from 8 to 7 per cent; to continue the debt limitation for the City of New York and for the County of Nassau at 10 per cent, and for other cities of 125,000 or more inhabitants at 9 per cent; to establish a debt limitation of 7 per cent for city purposes, excluding education purposes, for cities having less than 125,000 inhabitants; to establish a separate 5 per cent debt limit for school districts wholly or partly within or coterminous with cities of less than 125,000 inhabitants, subject to increase for specified objects or purposes upon approval of a proposition by school district voters and consent of the Regents and State Comptroller, and to include within the school district debt limit city debt contracted for education purposes prior to 1952; to advance the date of partial exclusion of indebtedness for potentially self-sustaining improvements or services to the date the debt is contracted; to authorize the City of New York to exclude from its 10 per cent debt limit (1) indebtedness contracted after January 1, 1952, for the construction and equipment of new rapid transit railroads and for the reconstruction and equipment of existing rapid transit railroads not exceeding $500,000,000, which exclusion may be used only once as such debt is contracted from time to time until it aggregates the permissible maximum regardless of repayments (i.e., it is non-revolving), and (2) bonded debt for school purposes to the extent to which State aid for common schools, not exceeding $2,500,000, shall be applied by such city in any fiscal year to meet the annual debt service thereon; to limit to the City of New York the provisions of Section 11 under which the amount of taxes for capital improvements or for payment of short-term debt for such improvements may be excluded from the constitutional tax limit upon condition that such amount be deemed indebtedness for the purpose of computing the constitutional debt contracting power in the same manner as though a debt had been incurred payable over the period of probable usefulness of the improvement, and to provide that any amount deemed to be indebtedness of a county, city other than New York, village or school district under that provision shall not be so considered on and after January 1, 1952, and to authorize such other cities, counties, villages and school districts wholly or partly within cities of less than 125,000 inhabitants, to exclude taxes required for direct budgetary appropriation to finance objects or purposes having a period of probable usefulness from their tax limitations unless the Legislature otherwise provides.

Form of Submission of Proposed Amendment Number Six

Shall the proposed amendment of article eight, sections four, five, seven and eleven, of the constitution, in relation to restrictions on the powers of counties, cities, towns, villages, and certain school districts to contract indebtedness and to impose taxes upon real estate be approved?

Abstract of Proposed Amendment Number Seven

Here's why Fordomatic puts them all in the past!

For the past 10 months, automotive writers and engineers have been raving about a new kind of automatic driving . . . and here's why you get it only in Ford Cars:

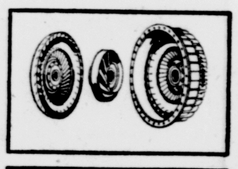

All the power you need when you need it is yours with Fordomatic. You'll find it the most thrilling experience you ever had. You'll discover the advantages of having . . . the smooth going that automatic drives employing torque converters can give you . . . plus the zip, control, and savings that cars with automatic gears can give you. For Fordomatic combines the finer features of all other automatic drives!

IT GIVES YOU INSTANT "GO"!
Because Fordomatic gives you a combination of the best features of all other automatic drives, it delivers instant "go" for exceptionally easy, exceptionally smooth starting, passing, and hill climbing. Its extra Intermediate Gear gives you a push of extra power any time you want it . . . extra braking power, too, that's outstandingly smooth.

IT PRACTICALLY DRIVES ITSELF!
Fordomatic drives your car for you better than you could ever drive it yourself. It brings you a completely new thrill in no-shift-lever, no-clutch-pedal driving, because its development began where all other automatic drives left off!

Some automatics have this
The automatic drive some cars offer you is a torque converter which multiplies torque without the use of gears. Its advantage is a smooth flow of power. Its disadvantage is a smaller range of torque multiplication which requires more power from the engine and an uneconomical axle ratio which increases costs.

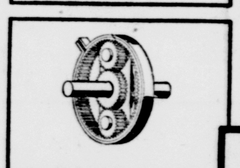

But Fordomatic has both

Yes, Fordomatic has a torque converter plus automatic gears. It brings you only the advantages of both drives and eliminates the disadvantages.

Unlike cars with only a torque converter (which start and cruise all in one drive gear), Fordomatic starts fast and smooth in Intermediate Gear then shifts itself into Drive Gear.

Some automatics have this
Other cars offer an automatic drive that uses automatic gears (as illustrated in simplified form at right) instead of a torque converter. The advantage here is more "go," more control and greater economy. The disadvantage is that this system is not as smooth, nor as jerk-free as a torque converter.

A GAS-SAVING POWERHOUSE!
Fordomatic's numerically lower rear axle ratio gives the fewest engine revolutions per mile of any car in its field. Fordomatic's automatic intermediate gear provides smooth, fast economical "getaway" without wasteful engine racing.

November Trial Jurors Selected; Kelly Case Due

A panel of 36 trial jurors was drawn Saturday for attendance at the November trial term of County court which will be convened Monday, Nov. 5, at 2 p. m., with County Judge John M. Cashin presiding.

Scheduled as the first criminal case to be moved for trial is the first degree murder indictment against Edward H. Kelly, 50, of Shokan who stands indicted for the shooting of Mrs. Eloise McHugh on May 22, 1950. Once convicted of murder, Kelly won a reversal of the conviction by the lower court and a new trial was ordered.

Murder Trial First

District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn stated that the Kelly case will be the first criminal matter moved at the November term. Kelly was returned from Sing Sing prison when the Court of Appeals directed a new trial and is now in the Ulster county jail awaiting trial.

Should the Kelly case be moved for trial early in the November term it will probably necessitate additional panels of jurors being summoned. At the first trial a total of 386 jurors was drawn before a trial panel of 12 and two alternates had been secured.

The following jurors were drawn Saturday for attendance in court Nov. 5 at 2 p. m.

is interested and who is willing to assist Alecca in this work to bring these advantages to the boys of the Fifth Ward may contact Alecca at 6557-R any evening. Rent and equipment will be provided free by the sponsor and all of the articles made by the boys will be their property to do with as they wish or sell as they like.

There is no tool or machine which will offer a hazard to the boys and while working they will be supervised and directed in handling the material and equipment.

After the club is organized there will be a demand for lumber for the boys to work with and anyone who desires to donate lumber in any size may do so. The wood will be called for by notifying Alecca. Wood of any size can be used and there will be a particular need for plywood, soft pine or similar wood from a quarter of an inch in thickness.

The move to form the club was decided upon when several boys of the area visited the shop and watched Alecca at work. They displayed an interest in the work and this prompted starting of the club.

"This club will be started as soon as possible, before snow flies, so let's get on the ball and get the club started for the benefit of the boys of the Fifth Ward," Alecca said.

'Pre-Trial' Cases Called by Justice

In an effort to clear up cases now on the Supreme Court calendar, Justice Herbert D. Hamm has instituted "pre-trial" hearings at chambers prior to opening a case in court. In this way many issues are shortened and in instances cases are settled without the need of going to the expense of trial.

To arrange for these pre-trial hearings at chambers Justice Hamm added to the calendar at the opening of court a long list of cases which appear on the general calendar and marked trial. Prior to beginning the jury trials a recess was taken to chambers to discuss these cases.

On the call three cases were announced settled as follows:

No. 8, Salvatore Bertona against James Galate, etc., a contract issue. Michael Nardone for plaintiff and Robert Ortale for defendant.

No. 11, Tannenbaum's Center Electric Co., Inc., vs. Ruth Gordon, an action for breach of contract. Philip Slutsky for plaintiff and Lounsberry & Lonstein for defendant.

No. 287, Robert A. Mierop against Joseph Mack, negligence. Roy L. Featherstone for plaintiff and Aldrich & Aldrich for defendant.

Treasury Agent

revenue agents, and the committee, headed by Rep. King (D-Calif.), has indicated its probe may be widened to cover the Department of Justice.

The Internal Revenue Bureau, meanwhile, sets out this week on the biggest job of inquiring into employes' financial affairs ever attemped by any government agency.

Officials said yesterday they have decided to require about 40,000 of the bureau's 57,000 employes to submit to a painfully detailed questionnaire which among other things, will ask how much money they have, where they got it and how much tax they've paid on it.

The questionnaire is almost certain to be one topic at a three-day conference of bureau field representatives opening here today.

Elsewhere, the Senate investigations subcommittee, headed by Senator Hoey (D-NC) planned an early report to Congress on its studies of relations between the chairman of both Democratic and Republican National Committees with the Reconstruction Finance Corp. (RFC) in connection with government loans.

82nd Congress Has

One provided $7,328,000,000 in foreign aid—military and economic—to bolster friendly nations abroad against Communism. The amount was slightly less than President Truman requested.

The second bill was a $4,128,000,000 military construction measure, which brought this year's appropriations for the army, navy, air force and marines to approximately $61,000,000,000. The other bill carried $1,675,000,000 in supplemental funds for miscellaneous purposes.

As Congress was closing up shop, Mr. Truman signed the $5,691,000,000 tax-increase bill which the lawmakers sent to him Friday. The President had asked for at least $10,000,000,000, and he said in a statement that the half loaf he got was not enough.

To Ask 'Improvement'

Indicating he may seek an additional increase, Mr. Truman said that when Congress returns in January he will ask for legislation "improving our tax laws."

In the next session spending may run even higher than it did during the one just closed. Mobilization officials have made it clear they feel the crest is yet to come.

With the new $5,691,000,000 tax boost unlikely to balance the budget—a deficit of about $5,000,000,000 has been predicted—Congress appears certain to be in for more wrestling next year with the same knotty problems, taxes and the defense program.

And the lawmakers undoubtedly will have less time to devote to them in 1952, that's a presidential election year and the nominating conventions of the two major parties are scheduled in the early summer. Also, all House seats and a third of the Senate will be at stake in the election.

Runs Into Trouble

At the last session, Mr. Truman fared well on defense and foreign aid appropriations but he ran into a good deal of trouble on his domestic program.

On economic controls, for example, Congress passed a law which—in signing reluctantly—the President termed entirely inadequate to control inflation. Some lawmakers, particularly Republicans, took sharp issue with him on that.

Mr. Truman asked Congress to revise the measure. The Senate passed a bill that went only part way toward meeting his suggestions, but the House shelved it.

The President is expected to ask that it be taken off the shelf in January, and that it be broadened to fit his program.

The Truman "Fair Deal" legislation didn't get to first base in Congress this year, but the President himself said at the outset that first things would have to come first—and that meant defense and taxes to pay for it.

Practical Nurses Plan Drive for Members

The regular monthly meeting of the Ulster County Division of Practical Nurses of New York, Inc., was held at the court house last Thursday. It was voted at the meeting to send a sum of money to the chairman of the state legislation committee of the Practical Nurses of New York, Inc.

A membership drive will open Nov. 1. All practical nurses of Ulster county are urged to join the organization. It was announced that joining the organization will be of greater benefit to the practical nurses. She will learn more about the practical nurse and what the practical stands for in the nursing field, it was pointed out.

Plans are being made for the Christmas party to be held Dec. 10. Time and date will be announced. It is requested all tickets, money and prizes be turned in by Friday, Oct. 26.

Air Reserves Will Hold Meeting Tuesday

The 9267th Volunteer Air Corps Reserve Training Squadron will meet in the American Legion building Tuesday at 8 p. m. Captain Irwin Levy, who has recently returned from a tour of active duty as instructor in the B-29 Engineers School, will talk on his experiences at this important air corps school. The talk will be of interest to all reservists and a full attendance is requested.

The evenings program will be of further interest to all as Sgt. Frank Weighall has obtained for showing the Staff Film 127 on the Korean War. This is an official documentary film of combat in the Korean War.

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Sheppard King III, whose wife has smiled benignly on his European romantic ventures, came home today to divorce her so he can pursue those ventures further. King, Texas oil heir, landed at New York International Airport and said he will leave for Houston this afternoon to start divorce action against his wife, Gloria, so he can wed Samia Gamal, Egyptian dancer. "The very day I get the divorce, I'm going to hop off to Cairo to marry Samia," he said, adding that he hoped to get the decree in four to six weeks.

Natural Gas Blast Hits Brooklyn Area

New York, Oct. 20 (AP) — Scores of families in the Napera Park section of Brooklyn were without cooking gas today when a gas main exploded at the corner of Nepperhan avenue and Read street.

Trolley car operator William Simon on the Napera Park trolley line told police his car had just passed the corner when the explosion occurred. He stopped his car and looked back and saw flames shooting from under the tracks as high as 30 to 35 feet.

The Edison company only recently converted from manufactured gas to natural gas in the Napera Park section where some 400 families have their homes.

Leaders Say

vides for a demilitarized zone with 1,000 yard radius at Panmunjom, attack-free areas with a three mile radius for the Reds' headquarters at Kaesong and the UN truce team at Munsan, and a quarter mile corridor center on the road linking Munsan, Panmunjom and Kaesong.

It guarantees against hostile acts against any of these zones. Both delegations are provided free access to the conference site with the head of each delegation deciding the size and composition of his own party.

Hostile acts along the entire front dwindled as possibility of negotiating an end to the shooting revived.

In preparation for renewed negotiations, Reds removed the few Korean families from the thatched roofed huts in Panmunjom.

Joint military police forces will police Panmunjom under the agreement. The MP force will consist of two officers and 15 men from each side when the conference is in session, one officer and five men from each side at other times.

"The military police," the agreement stipulates, "shall carry only small arms, namely pistols, rifles and carbines."

Compromise Reached

Last point to be ironed out was whether Allied planes should be permitted to fly over the protected areas. A compromise was reached providing Allied planes would avoid the areas "insofar as practicable."

The UN command said it would install beacon searchlights and anchored balloons as navigation aids to keep Allied pilots away from the protected zones. Just how many will be installed had not been announced. The balloons are expected to be bright yellow or orange, about 20 feet in diameter.

"Since they agreed on that point," said Col. Andrew J. Kinney, senior UN liaison officer, "we had nothing further to argue about."

Kinney said the first full-dress truce negotiation session at Panmunjom "probably will be within 48 hours."

Red liaison officers proposed the conferences begin at 11 a. m. Tuesday. However, Joy's reply contained the condition that the Red delegation must ratify the liaison officers agreement before negotiators meet.

Plans for Yule Decorations Sent To Uptown Stores

A letter was mailed today to all merchants in the uptown business area, enclosing a statement for the usual donation toward the cost of the 1951 Christmas decorating program. This letter was prepared by a special committee of the Kingston Merchant's Association, formerly known as the Uptown Business Men's Association, and signed by John S. Melvin, committee chairman.

Checks for the purpose are to be made out to the Association and sent to Charles Fabiano, treasurer, 328 Wall street, Kingston. The Kingston Chamber of Commerce assisted by preparing and mailing the statements.

A conference was held with a representative of the G. A. Trahan Company, which has been engaged to provide and erect the decorations and lighting, The committee agreed to maintain the quality of the decorations and rather than curtail the program, an increase of 15 per cent in the base cost was agreed upon. This will include several improvements in the decorations.

Work on erection of the Christmas lighting has already been started in the area.

The committee requested the cooperation of all merchants affected by sending in their contributions, because committee members are also busy and personal solicitation takes a great deal of time. Melvin said that a substantial down payment must be made when the contract is signed.

Positions Are Held

Allied forces directly south of Kumsong held their positions although an officer said "the Chinese may have withdrawn." At this point the UN line is about a mile to a mile and a half from the Kumsong river, which skirts the southern edge of the city.

The town, to the east of the Reds former iron triangle, is 30 miles north of the 38th parallel.

Six brief but sharp skirmishes broke out in the low rolling hills 15 miles north of Munsan and east of Panmunjom, new site for armistice talks.

Most of these skirmishes were instigated by allied patrols probing Red lines. In each case, an Eighth Army briefing officer said, "friendly forces withdrew."

An allied patrol ran into a Communist nest nine miles northwest of Yonchon on the western front and fell back under heavy Red fire. Two brief clashes broke out seven miles west of Chorwon, once the western anchor of the iron triangle. Entrenched Reds forced another UN partol to withdraw three miles north of Kumhwa, eastern base of the old triangle.

South Koreans forced Communist North Koreans to withdraw in three sharp actions along the east coast.

loan was not adequate. We worked this out by having one of the principals guarantee the note. But the loan terms, when finally approved, were so severe that the loan never was made."

He said a group of Detroit business men promoted the plan to build the hotel, The Chalfonte, and that he entered the negotiations at request of Sam Fleisher, president of the Fleisher Engineering and Construction Company of Minneapolis.

He said he participated "as an old friend" of Fleisher, and "I made it clear to the RFC that I was appearing in that capacity and not as counsel to the senate committee."

He said the Washington law firm of Chase and Williams with which he is associated was serving at the time as counsel for Fleisher's company.

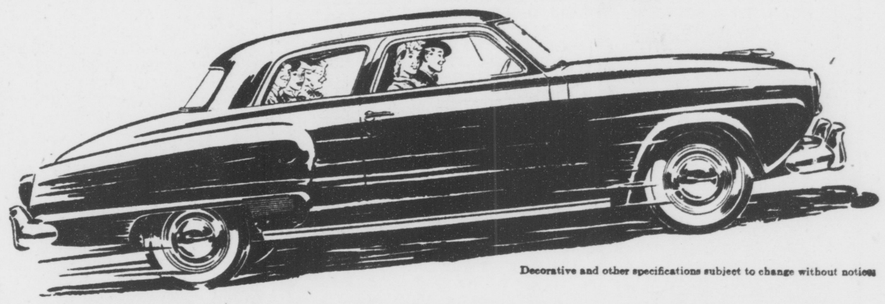

At the RFC, officials said the Chalfonte loan application was received Dec. 22, 1949, reviewed three times and finally authorized may 8, 1950. RFC said the authorization was cancelled Jan. 29, 1951 and the loan was never disbursed.

'Pre-Trial' Cases Called by Justice

In an effort to clear up cases now on the Supreme Court calendar, Justice Herbert D. Hamm has instituted "pre-trial" hearings at chambers prior to opening a case in court. In this way many issues are shortened and in instances cases are settled without the need of going to the expense of trial.

To arrange for these pre-trial hearings at chambers Justice Hamm added to the calendar at the opening of court a long list of cases which appear on the general calendar and marked trial. Prior to beginning the jury trials a recess was taken to chambers to discuss these cases.

On the call three cases were announced settled as follows:

No. 8, Salvatore Bertona against James Galate, etc., a contract issue. Michael Nardone for plaintiff and Robert Ortale for defendant.

No. 11, Tannenbaum's Center Electric Co., Inc., vs. Ruth Gordon, an action for breach of contract. Philip Slutsky for plaintiff and Lounsberry & Lonstein for defendant.

No. 287, Robert A. Mierop against Joseph Mack, negligence. Roy L. Featherstone for plaintiff and Aldrich & Aldrich for defendant.

Treasury Agent

revenue agents, and the committee, headed by Rep. King (D-Calif.), has indicated its probe may be widened to cover the Department of Justice.

The Internal Revenue Bureau, meanwhile, sets out this week on the biggest job of inquiring into employes' financial affairs ever attemped by any government agency.

Officials said yesterday they have decided to require about 40,000 of the bureau's 57,000 employes to submit to a painfully detailed questionnaire which among other things, will ask how much money they have, where they got it and how much tax they've paid on it.

The questionnaire is almost certain to be one topic at a three-day conference of bureau field representatives opening here today.

Elsewhere, the Senate investigations subcommittee, headed by Senator Hoey (D-NC) planned an early report to Congress on its studies of relations between the chairman of both Democratic and Republican National Committees with the Reconstruction Finance Corp. (RFC) in connection with government loans.

82nd Congress Has

One provided $7,328,000,000 in foreign aid—military and economic—to bolster friendly nations abroad against Communism. The amount was slightly less than President Truman requested.

The second bill was a $4,128,000,000 military construction measure, which brought this year's appropriations for the army, navy, air force and marines to approximately $61,000,000,000. The other bill carried $1,675,000,000 in supplemental funds for miscellaneous purposes.

As Congress was closing up shop, Mr. Truman signed the $5,691,000,000 tax-increase bill which the lawmakers sent to him Friday. The President had asked for at least $10,000,000,000, and he said in a statement that the half loaf he got was not enough.

To Ask 'Improvement'

Indicating he may seek an additional increase, Mr. Truman said that when Congress returns in January he will ask for legislation "improving our tax laws."

In the next session spending may run even higher than it did during the one just closed. Mobilization officials have made it clear they feel the crest is yet to come.

With the new $5,691,000,000 tax boost unlikely to balance the budget—a deficit of about $5,000,000,000 has been predicted—Congress appears certain to be in for more wrestling next year with the same knotty problems, taxes and the defense program.

And the lawmakers undoubtedly will have less time to devote to them in 1952, that's a presidential election year and the nominating conventions of the two major parties are scheduled in the early summer. Also, all House seats and a third of the Senate will be at stake in the election.

Runs Into Trouble

At the last session, Mr. Truman fared well on defense and foreign aid appropriations but he ran into a good deal of trouble on his domestic program.

On economic controls, for example, Congress passed a law which—in signing reluctantly—the President termed entirely inadequate to control inflation. Some lawmakers, particularly Republicans, took sharp issue with him on that.

Mr. Truman asked Congress to revise the measure. The Senate passed a bill that went only part way toward meeting his suggestions, but the House shelved it.

The President is expected to ask that it be taken off the shelf in January, and that it be broadened to fit his program.

The Truman "Fair Deal" legislation didn't get to first base in Congress this year, but the President himself said at the outset that first things would have to come first—and that meant defense and taxes to pay for it.

Practical Nurses Plan Drive for Members

The regular monthly meeting of the Ulster County Division of Practical Nurses of New York, Inc., was held at the court house last Thursday. It was voted at the meeting to send a sum of money to the chairman of the state legislation committee of the Practical Nurses of New York, Inc.

A membership drive will open Nov. 1. All practical nurses of Ulster county are urged to join the organization. It was announced that joining the organization will be of greater benefit to the practical nurses. She will learn more about the practical nurse and what the practical stands for in the nursing field, it was pointed out.

Plans are being made for the Christmas party to be held Dec. 10. Time and date will be announced. It is requested all tickets, money and prizes be turned in by Friday, Oct. 26.

Air Reserves Will Hold Meeting Tuesday

The 9267th Volunteer Air Corps Reserve Training Squadron will meet in the American Legion building Tuesday at 8 p. m. Captain Irwin Levy, who has recently returned from a tour of active duty as instructor in the B-29 Engineers School, will talk on his experiences at this important air corps school. The talk will be of interest to all reservists and a full attendance is requested.

The evenings program will be of further interest to all as Sgt. Frank Weighall has obtained for showing the Staff Film 127 on the Korean War. This is an official documentary film of combat in the Korean War.

King Reaches U. S.

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Sheppard King III, whose wife has smiled benignly on his European romantic ventures, came home today to divorce her so he can pursue those ventures further. King, Texas oil heir, landed at New York International Airport and said he will leave for Houston this afternoon to start divorce action against his wife, Gloria, so he can wed Samia Gamal, Egyptian dancer. "The very day I get the divorce, I'm going to hop off to Cairo to marry Samia," he said, adding that he hoped to get the decree in four to six weeks.

Evacuating the Wounded

A wounded South Korean soldier grimaces with pain as he is loaded aboard a U.S. Marine helicopter to be evacuated from the central front in Korea. Thirty-two wounded troopers of the ROK Sixth Division were taken out by helicopters which had flown in with ammunition.

Natural Gas Blast Hits Brooklyn Area

New York, Oct. 20 (AP) — Scores of families in the Napera Park section of Brooklyn were without cooking gas today when a gas main exploded at the corner of Nepperhan avenue and Read street.

Trolley car operator William Simon on the Napera Park trolley line told police his car had just passed the corner when the explosion occurred. He stopped his car and looked back and saw flames shooting from under the tracks as high as 30 to 35 feet.

The Edison company only recently converted from manufactured gas to natural gas in the Napera Park section where some 400 families have their homes.

Leaders Say

vides for a demilitarized zone with 1,000 yard radius at Panmunjom, attack-free areas with a three mile radius for the Reds' headquarters at Kaesong and the UN truce team at Munsan, and a quarter mile corridor center on the road linking Munsan, Panmunjom and Kaesong.

It guarantees against hostile acts against any of these zones. Both delegations are provided free access to the conference site with the head of each delegation deciding the size and composition of his own party.

Hostile acts along the entire front dwindled as possibility of negotiating an end to the shooting revived.

In preparation for renewed negotiations, Reds removed the few Korean families from the thatched roofed huts in Panmunjom.

Joint military police forces will police Panmunjom under the agreement. The MP force will consist of two officers and 15 men from each side when the conference is in session, one officer and five men from each side at other times.

"The military police," the agreement stipulates, "shall carry only small arms, namely pistols, rifles and carbines."

Compromise Reached

Last point to be ironed out was whether Allied planes should be permitted to fly over the protected areas. A compromise was reached providing Allied planes would avoid the areas "insofar as practicable."

The UN command said it would install beacon searchlights and anchored balloons as navigation aids to keep Allied pilots away from the protected zones. Just how many will be installed had not been announced. The balloons are expected to be bright yellow or orange, about 20 feet in diameter.

"Since they agreed on that point," said Col. Andrew J. Kinney, senior UN liaison officer, "we had nothing further to argue about."

Kinney said the first full-dress truce negotiation session at Panmunjom "probably will be within 48 hours."

Red liaison officers proposed the conferences begin at 11 a. m. Tuesday. However, Joy's reply contained the condition that the Red delegation must ratify the liaison officers agreement before negotiators meet.

Plans for Yule Decorations Sent To Uptown Stores

A letter was mailed today to all merchants in the uptown business area, enclosing a statement for the usual donation toward the cost of the 1951 Christmas decorating program. This letter was prepared by a special committee of the Kingston Merchant's Association, formerly known as the Uptown Business Men's Association, and signed by John S. Melvin, committee chairman.

Checks for the purpose are to be made out to the Association and sent to Charles Fabiano, treasurer, 328 Wall street, Kingston. The Kingston Chamber of Commerce assisted by preparing and mailing the statements.

A conference was held with a representative of the G. A. Trahan Company, which has been engaged to provide and erect the decorations and lighting, The committee agreed to maintain the quality of the decorations and rather than curtail the program, an increase of 15 per cent in the base cost was agreed upon. This will include several improvements in the decorations.

Work on erection of the Christmas lighting has already been started in the area.

The committee requested the cooperation of all merchants affected by sending in their contributions, because committee members are also busy and personal solicitation takes a great deal of time. Melvin said that a substantial down payment must be made when the contract is signed.

ridgeline about two miles long. The other column swept the southern slopes of the hills.

Positions Are Held

Allied forces directly south of Kumsong held their positions although an officer said "the Chinese may have withdrawn." At this point the UN line is about a mile to a mile and a half from the Kumsong river, which skirts the southern edge of the city.

The town, to the east of the Reds former iron triangle, is 30 miles north of the 38th parallel.

Six brief but sharp skirmishes broke out in the low rolling hills 15 miles north of Munsan and east of Panmunjom, new site for armistice talks.

Most of these skirmishes were instigated by allied patrols probing Red lines. In each case, an Eighth Army briefing officer said, "friendly forces withdrew."

An allied patrol ran into a Communist nest nine miles northwest of Yonchon on the western front and fell back under heavy Red fire. Two brief clashes broke out seven miles west of Chorwon, once the western anchor of the iron triangle. Entrenched Reds forced another UN partol to withdraw three miles north of Kumhwa, eastern base of the old triangle.

South Koreans forced Communist North Koreans to withdraw in three sharp actions along the east coast.

loan was not adequate. We worked this out by having one of the principals guarantee the note. But the loan terms, when finally approved, were so severe that the loan never was made."

He said a group of Detroit business men promoted the plan to build the hotel, The Chalfonte, and that he entered the negotiations at request of Sam Fleisher, president of the Fleisher Engineering and Construction Company of Minneapolis.

He said he participated "as an old friend" of Fleisher, and "I made it clear to the RFC that I was appearing in that capacity and not as counsel to the senate committee."

He said the Washington law firm of Chase and Williams with which he is associated was serving at the time as counsel for Fleisher's company.

At the RFC, officials said the Chalfonte loan application was received Dec. 22, 1949, reviewed three times and finally authorized may 8, 1950. RFC said the authorization was cancelled Jan. 29, 1951 and the loan was never disbursed.

Moths Carry Matches

By FRANK TRIPP

When the moths get after you, you're in for it. The miserable critters don't take any Summer vacation and when you get back from yours like as not they've perforated your best suit right where it shows most—and left you to find it out when you suddenly need it badly.

The weather got a mite nippy and I got out a heavier suit; one that was to see me through Winter, in the blue spectrum. The moths had spent the Summer on the front of the coat; bored two holes big as dimes right where you couldn't miss 'em.

So I says to Fanny: "How come; what's happened to the super bomb squad? Look at my good coat! Your department is slipping."

She felt awful bad about it and rushed to the closet where the coat had hung to see what further toll the moths had taken. She came back and said: "Strange; nothing else in there has been touched."

"Well," I says, "moths are smart. They saw the price tag that was left in the pocket. You should be careful about that. Don't let moths see prices. They always eat the high-priced stuff."

"Oh yeah," she beamed. "It's funny that nothing else in there was touched. I'm going to look into it."

THERE WAS A CALL waiting when I arrived at the office.

"Anna and I had the microscope on that coat of yours," Fanny phoned.

"Did you catch the culprits?" I asked her.

"Culprits nothing," she said. "Those aren't mothholes."

"Well now, don't tell me that. I saw 'em."

"They're cigarette burns," she said gaily. "—and don't you try to blame your own carelessness on my housekeeping. You know they're cigarette burns."

"Couldn't possibly be," I said. "When I last wore that coat I was off cigarettes; was smoking a pipe. Pipes don't burn holes."

"What do you mean they don't? You used to burn up a shirt a week when you were a baseball writer," she remembered.

"That wasn't a pipe," I told her. "That was when I rolled my own with the Bull Durham that I got for reporting the players' homers to the company. You'll find that moths made the holes all right."

"If they did they carried matches; for those holes go straight through the lining too." Then she hung up.

SHE HAD ME. And where the hair is short, because I've burned as many holes in clothes as moths have eaten. Nevertheless I was sort of tickled. On account of the insurance, which doesn't cover moths but does cigarettes.

That was my out when I got home that night; but she was too cute for me.

"It's going to cost you $10 apiece to get those holes rewoven," she said. "Twenty dollars because you toss your butts around like a baseball—remember that rug. Besides your not insured this time."

"Of course I am," I boasted.

"What about that $25 deductible clause? You said we had to stand the first $25 loss on every claim."

"Gosh, that's right," I admitted. "I forgot about that. What of it? We saved $120 on the premium that way, so we're still $100 to the good."

Then I got it: "Somehow, though it never makes sense, you can always squirm out of every fix you get in and make it look like you planned it that way," she said.

"Well, we did save $120 on the premium, didn't we?" I asked her.

"Sure—and I suppose, the way you figure it, you can burn ten more holes in your clothes at $10 a hole and still be even," she said.

"NOW you're getting somewhere," I puffed up and told her. "That's the trouble with women. They can't see the long range phase of things; never figure for the long pull."

"Like the Midwest Utilities that you bought me—for the long pull," she twitted. "Wasn't even good wallpaper."

"But"—

"And how about the time you packed the deep freeze full of beef the day before the price dropped 15 cents a pound?" She was laughing.

"But"—was as far as I got.

"You and your long pull! If I live to be a hundred I'll never forget the night you went out with 45 cents to buy two lamb chops—and came home with a picture of a bonfire that you saw in a window; that horrible chromo that still hangs down in your shop. The last 45 cents we had."

"But"—

"You should talk to me about long pull. We ate crackers and milk that night."

Her pretty face brightened.

"You're a good egg just the same. Come over here, I love you," she purred.

It made me feel swell, but I could only say "But—", and took her in my arms.

"Wait a minute, big boy," she said between kisses. "There goes your $100. You just burned a hole in the back of my dress."

We're negotiating, but she'll never settle for less than the hundred—I'm pretty sure.

Do You Remember

BY SOPHIE MILLER

Items like the following always interest me: "In Europe, between the 5th and 15th centuries, the average length of life was less than 20 years. In 1940 the average life expectancy in Chile was about 35 years; in Peru, less than 30 years; in Mexico, well under 40 years; and in India, about 27 years. Today in the United States, owing largely to reduction in the death rates of infants and children, life expectancy at birth has increased to approximately 68 years." And then suddenly will be a picture of an old, old man, smoking a pipe, against a Mexican background, and the item will read, that he is well past 100 years old. I think they just didn't keep records back in the olden days. If folks were old and useless, they were let to sit in a warm corner, given gruel, and smoking tobacco, with no one to bother them much until they lived out their years naturally. When the end came, no one was quite sure, when their life started, for they seem to have sat in that corner for eternity. With no written records, there wasn't much they could go by.

Just picked up the new Kingston, N. Y., booklet published by the Kingston Chamber of Commerce. Its for free. It would be interesting to learn what folks way out some where in the west or south would think of Kingston, by just seeing this booklet. The bird's-eye view on the cover shows quite a growing community. It looks a lot more than the 28,859 population as listed in the booklet. Looking back in the 1941 directory I see at that time the population was 28,589. So in the most productive last 10 years, Kingston only grew in population some 270. Where's everybody?

On the water supply, this booklet runs just one sentence, "Adequate pure water from mountain streams fed to the city mains by gravity." This might sound kind of sad to some westerners, who have desire to settle out here. They might even think we have desert land here. Of course the booklet relates that the facts are 'brief' but how brief can you get. For those who desire to brag about our municipal waterworks, it has a capacity of 1,200,000,000 gallons, with a daily average consumption of 5 and a half million gallons and runs through some 105 miles of mains. Value of this plant is estimated at $2,084,729 and that is from the 1941 Kingston directory, so with rise of prices perhaps it is worth twice as much. Many new houses have been built during the last 10 years and many more gallons of pure water from mountain streams are fed to the city mains by gravity.

The booklet mentions a municipal auditorium which seats 2,000, but what about the municipal stadium, which is mammoth, even though in the warmest weather it gathers cold currents like a whirlwind. Off hand I do not know the seating capacity of the stadium, but I think its worth bragging about, especially for night events with its excellent lighting facilities. It is marked on the map, but not in the Legend. Also under "Industries" what about the piano parts which are made in Kingston, and I understand, sent all over the nation. I would like to learn more about that piano factory. Must find out sometime.

Never owe money to a poor man or kiss a homely woman—they'll both talk about it.

Los Angeles (AP)—A UCLA professer is back on the campus after having spent the summer in prison. Dr. Donald Cressey went voluntarily to the U. S. penitentiary, Terre Haute, Ind., to study how an embezzler gets that way. He studied and interviewed some 55 prisoners, ranging from businessmen who had taken a half million dollars to a postal clerk who had pilfered 50 cents. The sociology instructor found that "it is a chain of events beginning with a non-sharable financial problem" which starts a normally respectable person on the road to embezzlement.

No Better Time to Order One!

Standard equipment, accessories and trim illustrated are subject to change without notice.

There are many motorists in our community who have reached that position in life where they feel themselves entitled to a Cadillac—and yet they have postponed placing their order.

They have heard, and quite rightly so, that there is some delay in delivery. And so, they have decided not to visit us until the car can be had more readily.

To them we say—there is no better time to order a Cadillac than right now. For each day you delay is costing you its price in motoring pleasure and satisfaction!

When you stop in at our showroom, we will talk to you frankly about what you may expect as to date of delivery. And we think you may be delighted, as have so many before you, to discover that the waiting period is not so long as might be expected—for so fine a car in such great demand.

And we think you will find, too, that once we have your order, it's a wonderful, satisfying feeling to know each passing day brings your Cadillac closer at hand.

But only when that day does arrive, and you take to the highway, will you know how well worth waiting for a Cadillac is.

For only when you experience its magnificent performance for yourself—so stimulating to the spirit and so restful to the body that you actually look forward to those moments behind the wheel—will you realize how completely Cadillac stands alone.

If you have already placed your order for a Cadillac—we sincerely hope you will continue to stand firm in your purpose!

Dealers who sell other cars are undoubtedly urging you to switch your order—for the sake of immediate delivery.

But just remember: immediate delivery means not in demand. You are waiting for a Cadillac because so many wonderful people, like yourself, want no other car. And they know that their waiting will pay its rewards.

So stand firm. Remember—each day brings you closer to your heart's desire.

New York (AP)—Chicken raising has become such a big business these days that production of 80,000 broilers a week is not too difficult an accomplishment. Moths Carry Matches

By FRANK TRIPP

When the moths get after you, you're in for it. The miserable critters don't take any Summer vacation and when you get back from yours like as not they've perforated your best suit right where it shows most—and left you to find it out when you suddenly need it badly.

The weather got a mite nippy and I got out a heavier suit; one that was to see me through Winter, in the blue spectrum. The moths had spent the Summer on the front of the coat; bored two holes big as dimes right where you couldn't miss 'em.

So I says to Fanny: "How come; what's happened to the super bomb squad? Look at my good coat! Your department is slipping."

She felt awful bad about it and rushed to the closet where the coat had hung to see what further toll the moths had taken. She came back and said: "Strange; nothing else in there has been touched."

"Well," I says, "moths are smart. They saw the price tag that was left in the pocket. You should be careful about that. Don't let moths see prices. They always eat the high-priced stuff."

"Oh yeah," she beamed. "It's funny that nothing else in there was touched. I'm going to look into it."

THERE WAS A CALL waiting when I arrived at the office.

"Anna and I had the microscope on that coat of yours," Fanny phoned.

"Did you catch the culprits?" I asked her.

"Culprits nothing," she said. "Those aren't mothholes."

"Well now, don't tell me that. I saw 'em."

"They're cigarette burns," she said gaily. "—and don't you try to blame your own carelessness on my housekeeping. You know they're cigarette burns."

"Couldn't possibly be," I said. "When I last wore that coat I was off cigarettes; was smoking a pipe. Pipes don't burn holes."

"What do you mean they don't? You used to burn up a shirt a week when you were a baseball writer," she remembered.

"That wasn't a pipe," I told her. "That was when I rolled my own with the Bull Durham that I got for reporting the players' homers to the company. You'll find that moths made the holes all right."

"If they did they carried matches; for those holes go straight through the lining too." Then she hung up.

SHE HAD ME. And where the hair is short, because I've burned as many holes in clothes as moths have eaten. Nevertheless I was sort of tickled. On account of the insurance, which doesn't cover moths but does cigarettes.

That was my out when I got home that night; but she was too cute for me.

"It's going to cost you $10 apiece to get those holes rewoven," she said. "Twenty dollars because you toss your butts around like a baseball—remember that rug. Besides your not insured this time."

"Of course I am," I boasted.

"What about that $25 deductible clause? You said we had to stand the first $25 loss on every claim."

"Gosh, that's right," I admitted. "I forgot about that. What of it? We saved $120 on the premium that way, so we're still $100 to the good."

Then I got it: "Somehow, though it never makes sense, you can always squirm out of every fix you get in and make it look like you planned it that way," she said.

"Well, we did save $120 on the premium, didn't we?" I asked her.

"Sure—and I suppose, the way you figure it, you can burn ten more holes in your clothes at $10 a hole and still be even," she said.

"NOW you're getting somewhere," I puffed up and told her. "That's the trouble with women. They can't see the long range phase of things; never figure for the long pull."

"Like the Midwest Utilities that you bought me—for the long pull," she twitted. "Wasn't even good wallpaper."

"But"—

"And how about the time you packed the deep freeze full of beef the day before the price dropped 15 cents a pound?" She was laughing.

"But"—was as far as I got.

"You and your long pull! If I live to be a hundred I'll never forget the night you went out with 45 cents to buy two lamb chops—and came home with a picture of a bonfire that you saw in a window; that horrible chromo that still hangs down in your shop. The last 45 cents we had."

"But"—

"You should talk to me about long pull. We ate crackers and milk that night."

Her pretty face brightened.

"You're a good egg just the same. Come over here, I love you," she purred.

It made me feel swell, but I could only say "But—", and took her in my arms.

"Wait a minute, big boy," she said between kisses. "There goes your $100. You just burned a hole in the back of my dress."

We're negotiating, but she'll never settle for less than the hundred—I'm pretty sure.

Do You Remember

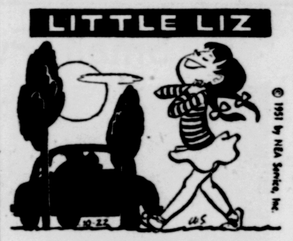

BY SOPHIE MILLER

Items like the following always interest me: "In Europe, between the 5th and 15th centuries, the average length of life was less than 20 years. In 1940 the average life expectancy in Chile was about 35 years; in Peru, less than 30 years; in Mexico, well under 40 years; and in India, about 27 years. Today in the United States, owing largely to reduction in the death rates of infants and children, life expectancy at birth has increased to approximately 68 years." And then suddenly will be a picture of an old, old man, smoking a pipe, against a Mexican background, and the item will read, that he is well past 100 years old. I think they just didn't keep records back in the olden days. If folks were old and useless, they were let to sit in a warm corner, given gruel, and smoking tobacco, with no one to bother them much until they lived out their years naturally. When the end came, no one was quite sure, when their life started, for they seem to have sat in that corner for eternity. With no written records, there wasn't much they could go by.

Just picked up the new Kingston, N. Y., booklet published by the Kingston Chamber of Commerce. Its for free. It would be interesting to learn what folks way out some where in the west or south would think of Kingston, by just seeing this booklet. The bird's-eye view on the cover shows quite a growing community. It looks a lot more than the 28,859 population as listed in the booklet. Looking back in the 1941 directory I see at that time the population was 28,589. So in the most productive last 10 years, Kingston only grew in population some 270. Where's everybody?

On the water supply, this booklet runs just one sentence, "Adequate pure water from mountain streams fed to the city mains by gravity." This might sound kind of sad to some westerners, who have desire to settle out here. They might even think we have desert land here. Of course the booklet relates that the facts are 'brief' but how brief can you get. For those who desire to brag about our municipal waterworks, it has a capacity of 1,200,000,000 gallons, with a daily average consumption of 5 and a half million gallons and runs through some 105 miles of mains. All members of the clubs will be able to work on the medium of their choice. During the club year, each girl also will get a chance to learn the other crafts and to experiment with them. Small Furs Add Dash to Costume

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Woman's Editor

New York—(NEA)—Fun fashions in fur are fine and they add a flip to any wardrobe. But they should be inexpensive. If they're done in rabbit, they are. And the smaller they are, the less they can cost.

A little shrug jacket in chinchilla rabbit, the king of rabbit furs, is (left) mostly sleeves. Designed by Furbelows, it's dashing over a short white evening dress. Or, it can go over a suit or coat in place of a stole or even see service as the ultimate in luxurious bed jackets.

An at-home costume designed just for fun (right) by Harold Rubin turns out to be a practical fashion, too. A purple wrap-around skirt in rabbit fur is lined with turquoise wool jersey and worn over matching turquoise leotards. But the skirt can serve as a lap-robe in the car, as a knee-warmer at chilly spectator sports.

Stork Shower Held For Mrs. Stoutenburg

Mrs. Grant Stoutenburg of 47 St. James street was honored at a stork shower given October 17 at the home of Mrs. Herbert L. Dickerson, 93 Henry street. Mrs. Dickerson and Mrs. Helen Dohnken were co-hostesses.

The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion. In one corner of the large living room was an old-fashioned wicker doll carriage decorated with ruffles of pink, blue and white filled with many gifts. On a small table, a stork was surrounded with many more gifts. The guest of honor's chair also was completely decorated in appropriate colors. Decorations also included streamers hung from the chandelier with baby pictures added.

A buffet dinner was served. In the center of the table, a large cake was set off by pink and blue streamers.

Guests attending included the Mmes. Griffin Stoutenburg, Earl Stoutenburg, Sherman Moore, Lauren Stoutenburg, Chester Steen, Frances M. Honeyman, Eldena Freer, Aaron Gray, Raymond Hoetger, William Irwin, Edwin Schatzel, H. Dohnken, Arthur Gray, George Dohnken, Richard Gray, Henry Harjes, Berton Bodie, William Gray, Allen Stoutenburg, Willis Wilber, Wallace Effner, Abbie Stoutenburg, Leon Smith, Gilbert Gray and the Misses Arlene Hung, Marlene Gray, Marie V. On Musical Tour

Donald DeWitt, son of Mrs. Theresa DeWitt, Kingston, is on tour with the Crane Male quartet and soloists from the State University Teachers College at Potsdam. They are presenting programs in Lake George Monday, Oct. 29; in North Creek, Indian Lake, and Newcomb Tuesday, Oct. 30; and in Canajoharie Monday, Nov. 5.

Rockefeller Center Trees

New York (AP) — Three honey locust trees 50 feet high will soon be planted on the Fifth avenue side of Rockefeller Center to replace the three elms that found city life too tough. The trees, each weighing more than five tons, were brought here from New Jersey by truck and trailer. Ten-foot balls of earth protected the roots. The honey locust tree is believed by horticulturists to be the best qualified tree to replace the disease-ridden American elms. The honey locust tree branches out in a wide, graceful shape and is relatively free of pests and disease.

The Empire State Building is 1,248 feet high not counting the recently installed TV antenna atop the famous building.

HOME BUREAU

Miss I. Marie Gustafson, New York State librarian, conducted a workshop on story telling for 12 unit leaders of the Home Bureau Tuesday at the First Dutch Reformed Church in Kingston. Besides providing entertainment for children, Miss Gustafson said, "story telling builds background for literary appreciation and racial understanding and develops ethical and moral values." Those present practiced the art of story telling to gain experience for unit meetings.

Nutrition School

At the second training school for food and nutrition leaders Tuesday Miss Therese Wood, specialist, discussed the buying of milk, cheese, fats and staples and their use as a means of providing daily food requirements and of keeping food costs down. Among the demonstrations was the making of a cake mix which requires no refrigeration and which lends itself to many cake and cookie variations.

Kitchen Planning

Miss Agnes Carlson, specialist in institution management from the New York State College of Home Economics, conducted a meeting on kitchen planning and the selection of equipment as these apply to small hotels and boarding houses at Miss Marguerite Quick's in High Falls, Wednesday morning.

Among the principles discussed and applied to kitchen arrangements were the importance of thinking through the activities of the people working in the kitchen to be able to arrange large pieces of equipment to best advantage for ease in working, of keeping traffic lanes clear for those working at different jobs, of storing cooking utensils near the place each is first used.

In the afternoon Miss Carlson met with the women of the Flatbush Reformed Church to discuss reorganization of activities in preparing and serving a church supper and procedures that facilitate work and lessen fatigue of workers.

Discuss New Unit

Eighteeen women at Lake Mohonk met Wednesday to discuss the formation of a Home Bureau unit. Miss Helen Rowe, assistant home demonstration agent, reviewed the extension service program. On Tuesday night, Oct. 23, the group will again meet to complete organization.

The Kripplebush Home Bureau unit will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday, Oct. 24, at the home of Mrs. J. Greenberg. All members are requested to attend.

The Hurley Home Bureau will have a demonstration meeting Thursday, Oct. 25, at 10 a. m. Mrs. George Brown will instruct the making of tasty desserts. Each member is requested to bring her favorite covered dish and a place setting. Lunch will be served at 12 noon. Dessert will be furnished.

Dr. Hilleboe Will Address County GOP Women Tuesday Night

All plans are ready for the visit of State Commission of Health Herman E. Hilleboe at the non-political meeting of the Ulster County Women's Republican Club, at 8 p. m., Tuesday, at the Governor Clinton Hotel. This was announced today by Mrs. Ruth Brinnier, club president.

Dr. Hilleboe accompanied Governor Dewey on his recent trip to Japan, Korea and other points in the Far East. He will describe the trip here Tuesday night.

Those who have heard Dr. Hilleboe talk of his experiences have been loud in their praise of the message which he brings back from Korea. He describes the conditions under which American boys are fighting in Korea, the way in which wunded boys are treated and flown bock to hospitals in Japan, and many other interesting facts.

Members of the medical, dental nursing and public health fields have been invited to attend as guests of the club to hear Dr. Hilleboe.

Members of the Ulster County Women's Republican Club have indicated a wide interest in this affair and it is expected that a large audience will be present Tuesday night to hear Dr. Hilleboe's address.

GREETING LONG-ABSENT IN-LAW

A reader tells me: "I haven't seen my sister-in-law for five years or more and will soon go to pay her and her husband a visit. She will meet me and perhaps it sounds a bit silly, but I'd like to know how I treat a relative I don't feel especially close to and haven't seen for a long time. Should it be merely a handshake or should I kiss her?"

I think you take your cue from her behavior. If she leans forward to obviously kiss you, then you kiss her on her cheek, otherwise if she stands rigidly straight, you give her your hand.

Giving "Gift" to Domestic Help

Dear Mrs. Post: I was brought up to consult with a hostess before leaving anything for household help. I have lived all around the world and found this was the practice. But I notice you don't in any of your writings suggest that this plan be followed. You merely say what should be given to the various ones and how, but the hostess' feelings are not mentioned.

Answer: In my opinion it would be very improper for the hostess to be brought into it, because it would be embarrassing for her to say she expects you to tip her maids, and unfair to the maid to deprive her of the tip she has earned because of extra work.

Bid for Presents

Dear Mrs. Post: I have a reluctant feeling about sending engraved wedding invitations to people who very definitely won't be able to come to the wedding. I'm afraid that they will regard the invitations as a bid for presents.

Answer: It is true that some people who receive invitations might feel obligated, but according to actual rules of etiquette it should not obligate them to anything. The only obligation is that of relationship or very long friendship—and this exists even if no invitations are received.

Paid Thank-You Notices

Dear Mrs. Post: Are paid thank-you notices in the papers after a death in the family permissible?

Answer: They are not improper in smaller communities but very improper in great cities.

Small Furs Add Dash to Costume

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Woman's Editor

New York—(NEA)—Fun fashions in fur are fine and they add a flip to any wardrobe. But they should be inexpensive. If they're done in rabbit, they are. And the smaller they are, the less they can cost.

A little shrug jacket in chinchilla rabbit, the king of rabbit furs, is (left) mostly sleeves. Designed by Furbelows, it's dashing over a short white evening dress. Or, it can go over a suit or coat in place of a stole or even see service as the ultimate in luxurious bed jackets.

An at-home costume designed just for fun (right) by Harold Rubin turns out to be a practical fashion, too. A purple wrap-around skirt in rabbit fur is lined with turquoise wool jersey and worn over matching turquoise leotards. But the skirt can serve as a lap-robe in the car, as a knee-warmer at chilly spectator sports.

Stork Shower Held For Mrs. Stoutenburg

Mrs. Grant Stoutenburg of 47 St. James street was honored at a stork shower given October 17 at the home of Mrs. Herbert L. Dickerson, 93 Henry street. Mrs. Dickerson and Mrs. Helen Donnken were co-hostesses.

The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion. In one corner of the large living room was an old-fashioned wicker doll carriage decorated with ruffles of pink, blue and white filled with many gifts. On a small table, a stork was surrounded with many more gifts. The guest of honor's chair also was completely decorated in appropriate colors. Decorations also included streamers hung from the chandelier with baby pictures added.

A buffet dinner was served. In the center of the table, a large cake was set off by pink and blue streamers.

On Musical Tour

Donald DeWitt, son of Mrs. Theresa DeWitt, Kingston, is on tour with the Crane Male quartet and soloists from the State University Teachers College at Potsdam. They are presenting programs in Lake George Monday, Oct. 29; in North Creek, Indian Lake, and Newcomb Tuesday, Oct. 30; and in Canajoharie Monday, Nov. 5.

Rockefeller Center Trees

New York (AP) — Three honey locust trees 50 feet high will soon be planted on the Fifth avenue side of Rockefeller Center to replace the three elms that found city life too tough. The trees, each weighing more than five tons, were brought here from New Jersey by truck and trailer. Ten-foot balls of earth protected the roots. The honey locust tree is believed by horticulturists to be the best qualified tree to replace the disease-ridden American elms. The honey locust tree branches out in a wide, graceful shape and is relatively free of pests and disease.

The Empire State Building is 1,248 feet high not counting the recently installed TV antenna atop the famous building.

HOME BUREAU

Miss I. Marie Gustafson, New York State librarian, conducted a workshop on story telling for 12 unit leaders of the Home Bureau Tuesday at the First Dutch Reformed Church in Kingston. Besides providing entertainment for children, Miss Gustafson said, "story telling builds background for literary appreciation and racial understanding and develops ethical and moral values." Those present practiced the art of story telling to gain experience for unit meetings.

Nutrition School

At the second training school for food and nutrition leaders Tuesday Miss Therese Wood, specialist, discussed the buying of milk, cheese, fats and staples and their use as a means of providing daily food requirements and of keeping food costs down. Among the demonstrations was the making of a cake mix which requires no refrigeration and which lends itself to many cake and cookie variations.

Kitchen Planning

Miss Agnes Carlson, specialist in institution management from the New York State College of Home Economics, conducted a meeting on kitchen planning and the selection of equipment as these apply to small hotels and boarding houses at Miss Marguerite Quick's in High Falls, Wednesday morning.

Among the principles discussed and applied to kitchen arrangements were the importance of thinking through the activities of the people working in the kitchen to be able to arrange large pieces of equipment to best advantage for ease in working, of keeping traffic lanes clear for those working at different jobs, of storing cooking utensils near the place each is first used.

In the afternoon Miss Carlson met with the women of the Flatbush Reformed Church to discuss reorganization of activities in preparing and serving a church supper and procedures that facilitate work and lessen fatigue of workers.

Discuss New Unit

Eighteeen women at Lake Mohonk met Wednesday to discuss the formation of a Home Bureau unit. Miss Helen Rowe, assistant home demonstration agent, reviewed the extension service program. On Tuesday night, Oct. 23, the group will again meet to complete organization.

The Kripplebush Home Bureau unit will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday, Oct. 24, at the home of Mrs. J. Greenberg. All members are requested to attend.

The Hurley Home Bureau will have a demonstration meeting Thursday, Oct. 25, at 10 a. m. Mrs. George Brown will instruct the making of tasty desserts. Each member is requested to bring her favorite covered dish and a place setting. Lunch will be served at 12 noon. Dessert will be furnished.

He describes the conditions under which American boys are fighting in Korea, the way in which wunded boys are treated and flown bock to hospitals in Japan, and many other interesting facts.

Members of the medical, dental nursing and public health fields have been invited to attend as guests of the club to hear Dr. Hilleboe.

News From City Grade Schools

During this month, various elementary schools throughout the city are holding grade teas for room mothers. At these teas, mothers have an opportunity to become acquainted with their child's room and his teacher; the grade program is explained, and ways in which the home and school can work together to meet the needs of children are discussed. Wherever possible the sixth grade girls have the experience of helping the teacher plan and serve the tea. Mothers seem enthusiastic about this plan and other meetings during the year have been suggested.

As a part of the 1951-52 literature program in the elementary schools, Warren Russell, director of visual education, has scheduled six literature films for presentation. Heidi was shown in September and Little Men will be presented in November. Others will be announced as soon as confirmation dates have been received.

Parents of kindergarten and first grade children have expressed great satisfaction at the opportunity for a personal face-to-face conference with teachers regarding their children's progress, which has extended to them over the past two years. This year the "conference" plan will be extended to mothers of second graders. In cases where a conference is not possible, parents will receive a letter giving specific comments on the child's progress.

Kingston is well represented in the newly formed discussion group for elementary supervisors and principals of the Mid-Hudson area. Meetings are to be held at the college at New Paltz on the first Tuesday of each month. It is hoped that this pooling of knowledge on common problems may help each administrator to improve the program in his local situation.

Art work of elementary school children of Kingston will be exhibited at the art exhibit to be held at the New Paltz State Teachers College. This work has been done under the direction of Holland Foster and Alvin Most, art teachers in the elementary schools.

Music Interest High

Miss Lula May Roberts, who is in charge of instrumental music instruction in the elementary schools, reports that the number of elementary school children receiving instruction has reached a total of approximately 250. A great variety of instruments have been selected by children so that an orchestra for each school will be possible. Approximately 150 children either rent or own their own instruments. The Board of Education supplies approximately 100 instruments to the other children. Admission to instrumental instruction is dependent on musical aptitude, and although the large numbers necessitate group instruction, individual progress is carefully checked. Some of the children have become proficient enough to appear in community programs.

School Councils, with representatives from grades 3-6 have been formed in several schools. The councils meet regularly to discuss school problems and to make recommendations for improvement. It is surprising how clearly and fairly these young children can discuss these problems, under the sympathetic guidence of a teacher advisor. Frequent elections to the council make it possible for many children to have this experience sometime during the course of the elementary school period.

Cadet Training

Kingston has again been selected by the New Paltz State Teachers College as a training center for cadet teachers. At present there are cadets at Schools 8, 2, 4. During the next period, beginning Nov. 12, Schools 7, 8, 2 will have this privilege.

These teachers-in-training observe grade teachers, analyze data about children, help in classroom routine, give individual help to children, participate in playground activities and during the latter part of the nine week period are allowed to teach groups of children under careful supervision of the cooperating teacher.

Teachers find that more individual help for children are available through cadet help and that the new ideas and materials brought into the classroom are stimulating.

A handbook for parents of elementary school children has been prepared and will be issued shortly. It is hoped that this publication will find a long-felt need of parents for specific information on the elementary school program. School policy in regard to health and safety, special services provided by the schools, brief notes concerning the content of each grade, the schools attitude toward homework, and interesting activities being carried on by the schools are among the items included.

Jacoby on Canasta

Discuss Rules Before Playing

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

The question of an eighth card in a canasta keeps coming up. The best way to clear this point up is to explain the rule first and then to answer the questions that are usually asked on this point.

A canasta is a meld of at least seven cards of the same rank. It is not necessarily a meld of exactly seven cards. It may contain, eight cards, nine cards, ten cards, or even eleven cards. That has always been the official rule, and no authority has ever dreamed of changing, it.

The only limitation on the cards in a canasta is that there may be no more than three wild cards. There is no limit to the number of natural cards that may be melded in a canasta—except the fact that there are only eight natural cards in the deck.

The confusion is caused by the fact that some players follow a "house" rule by which the number of cards in a canasta is limited to seven. This has never been the official rule.

Nobody can prevent you from following this house rule if you wish to do so. But if you do, let me remind you of two things: first, it is a very poor rule and may land you in hopeless tangles; and second, if you play with a new group remember that you have to discuss which rule you are going to follow.

Now let's see some of the questions.

Q—I have a canasta of four kings and three wild cards. Later on I develop an extra pair of kings in my hand. The player at my right then throws a king. May I take the discard pile and add the three kings to my completed canasta?

A—Yes. It is always legal to take the previous discard when you have a matching pair of natural cards in your hand. The three kings must be added to your canasta.

Q—My opponents had five queens on the table, and the pack was frozen. I threw a queen, and the next player tried to take it with two queens from his hand. This would give him an eight-card canasta. Can this be done?

A—Yes. There is nothing wrong with having eight cards in a canasta.

Q—I have a canasta that consists of six kings and a joker. May I later add to it from my hand? May I add only natural kings, or are wild cards permitted also?

A—You may add to the canasta from your hand. Wild cards are permitted, provided that the canasta never contains more than three wild cards.

Discuss Rules Before Playing

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

The question of an eighth card in a canasta keeps coming up. The best way to clear this point up is to explain the rule first and then to answer the questions that are usually asked on this point.

A canasta is a meld of at least seven cards of the same rank. It is not necessarily a meld of exactly seven cards. It may contain, eight cards, nine cards, ten cards, or even eleven cards. That has always been the official rule, and no authority has ever dreamed of changing it.

The only limitation on the cards in a canasta is that there may be no more than three wild cards. There is no limit to the number of natural cards that may be melded in a canasta—except the fact that there are only eight natural cards in the deck.

The confusion is caused by the fact that some players follow a "house" rule by which the number of cards in a canasta is limited to seven. This has never been the official rule.

Nobody can prevent you from following this house rule if you wish to do so. But if you do, let me remind you of two things: first, it is a very poor rule and may land you in hopeless tangles; and second, if you play with a new group remember that you have to discuss which rule you are going to follow.

Now let's see some of the questions.

Q—I have a canasta of four kings and three wild cards. Later on I develop an extra pair of kings in my hand. The player at my right then throws a king. May I take the discard pile and add the three kings to my completed canasta?

A—Yes. It is always legal to take the previous discard when you have a matching pair of natural cards in your hand. The three kings must be added to your canasta.

Q—My opponents had five queens on the table, and the pack was frozen. I threw a queen, and the next player tried to take it with two queens from his hand. This would give him an eight-card canasta. Can this be done?

A—Yes. There is nothing wrong with having eight cards in a canasta.

Q—I have a canasta that consists of six kings and a joker. May I later add to it from my hand? May I add only natural kings, or are wild cards permitted also?

A—You may add to the canasta from your hand. Wild cards are permitted, provided that the canasta never contains more than three wild cards.

"Can I afford to heat my home ELECTRICALLY?"
Everybody has dreams of heating an entire house by electrictiy. Everybody knows that electric heat is CLEAN, SAFE and DEPENDABLE.
But nobody knows whether electric is within reach of the good old average American pocketbook.
Nobody, that is, except the folks who've had a talk with a GLASSHEAT dealer . . . or the folks who have already tried GLASSHEAT in their own homes.
The GLASSHEAT DEALER will tell you how much electric heating will cost, based on your electric rate. . . . He will show you what is needed (if anything) to make electric heating of your home an economy . . . and will give you figures to prove that the total cost of installation of a system of GLASSHEAT panels plus what insulation you might need is usually less than a heating system alone.

Southern Cal Emerges as New Football Power on the Coast

Tennessee Rolls On Toward No. 1 Spot

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—The old maxim that most accidents take place right in your own back yard is something to ponder. Ask California, Texas, Texas A. and M.

They were rolling merrily along winning game after game—some from rivals all over the country—but they awake with a start today to find their proud records smashed to smithereens by foes they expected to take into camp with no trouble.

The biggest reversal Saturday was Southern California's 21-14 victory over California, a team that had been tied only once in the past four years of regular season competition and which had held a virtual stranglehold on the Pacific Coast Conference championship.

That's all over now if the Trojans can get past Stamford and U.C.L.A., their two remaining league foes. Further, those victories would assure Southern Cal a Rose Bowl bid, which automatically goes to the conference winner provided it has not played there the previous year.

In the southwest, where the annual mad scramble for the Cotton Bowl bid is in full swing, no one would dare make a prediction on the future after Saturday's shenanigans.

Texas was supposed to have no trouble with doormat Arkansas. The Razorbacks won, 16-14. Texas A. and M. was a cinch over Texas Christian. The underdogs won, 20-14. Southern Methodist was set to sail past Rice. Rice won, 28-7.

T.C.U. First

Now the standings look like something dreamed up on Mars. Texas Christian is in first place with a 2-0 slate and Texas, Texas A. and M. and Southern Methodist share the cellar with 0-1 records. Baylor, which whipped Texas Tech, 40-20, is the only league team with a clean record, 4-0. However, only one victory has been scored over a league opponent.

Ohio State was the choice to win the Big 10 crown in pre-season forecasts. But the Buckeyes have been staggering and after their 32-10 shellacking at the hands of Indiana, one of the league have-nots, they will be lucky to make it.

Defending champion Michigan heads the class with two wins and no losses after polishing off Iowa, 21-0. But the Wolverines still must play Minnesota, Illinois, Northwestern and Ohio State, so the race is far from settled.

In the South, Tennessee, Maryland and Georgia Tech still are in the thick of the fight for top national honors. Tennessee was the prediction for the No. 1 team in the land before the season started, and the Vols have held up admirably, their latest conquest being a 27-13 operation on Alabama.

But the South in general has been weaker than expected and this more than any other factor, probably has kept the Vols from going to the top in the weekly Associated Press poll. Maryland, which probably will win the Southern Conference title, roared past North Carolina, 14-7, and Georgia Tech knocked Auburn from the ranks of the undefeated, 27-7.

In the East in general, and the Ivy League in particular, the situation also is confused, but it should be ironed out come Saturday when Princeton and Cornell clash. The winner should wind up with the crown. The Tigers warmed up to their task by winning their 17th straight, this one from Lafayette 60-7, while Cornell polished off Yale, 27-0.

Harvard beat Army, 22-21; Oklahoma, last year's mythical national champion, stopped Kansas 33-21, and Notre Dame overwhelmed Pitt, 33-0 in other major games.

The Syracuse Bowling Association—a powerful influence in recruiting support for Kingston's successful bid for the 1952 New York State bowling championships—has further reiterated its interest in local tenpinning by reserving dates for 150 teams.

John O. Martino, former president of the American Bowling Congress, and Bernard W. Sarno, a state power, have pledged more teams than any city association in the state.

The New York Bowling Association, through its secretary John Goldsmith, has advance reservations for 100 teams. State Secretary George Obenauer's Buffalo Association so far has reserved 70 units. New York and Buffalo will both send much larger delegations.

Interesting Item—The Rochester Association which Kingston beat for the tournament site has made reservations for only four teams.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Writes an irked Yankee fan: "After reading and hearing all those Giant alibis about that postponement, I am wondering if the Yankees played the Giants or the Weather Bureau in the World Series. . . ." Commenting on optimism in Oneonta about 1952 plans for the Can-Am League, Fran Regan, the Rome Daily Sentinel sports editor penned these enchanting lines: "There have been a number of interesting innovations tried and many more proposed by the Canadian-American League during its years of existence but no one in that circuit ever had the idea of running a one-team league." Brother Regan's subtle rejoinder is more truth than poetry. One baseball figure told us he thought OB should return to Kingston next year because of the 300th anniversary program. Perhaps the Chamber of Commerce would be interested in taking over the promotion and offering it as one of the highlights of the celebration. It is obvious that if OB is to continue, new money and new faces must be interested in the project.

Jake Senor, the downtown restaurateur who switched horses more often than a Pony Express rider in the late stages of the major league season, greeted his customers the day after the Yankee Series triumph with this printed announcement: Next game, April 20, 1952, Yankees vs. Washington, Vic Raschi vs. Bob Porterfield. Could he have switched to the Yankees after the sixth game of the Series?

• The Eleventh Frame:

Sue Heins, the tall blonde starlet who was heading for bowling stardom until floored by illness, will soon receive a diamond medal from the New York State Woman's Bowling Association for rolling the highest score in the state last year. It was a 289. A big shindig will be held in conjunction with the prize award on Nov. 2. Are you clear on the new ABC substitution rule? It states: "After a game has started, no changes shall be made in the order of the players during such game, except that the captain may replace any of his players by another qualified substitute at any time. When a substitution is made during a game, the score of such game shall be credited to the player who bowls the greatest number of frames in that game. (The old system credited the game to the starter regardless of the number of frames he bowled). When the division of frames is equal the score shall be credited to the first player sharing the equal division of frames. A player once removed from a game cannot return in the same game. Scores bowled through the efforts of more than one individual player shall not qualify for any ABC or local high individual score awards. Further, the old substitution rule required an open frame before a substitution. This is no longer necessary.

"Gangway For the Navy," the recently published story of football at the U. S. Naval Academy from 1879 to 1950, named the all-time Middie eleven. The first team selections. Ends, Dick Duden '45 and Eddie Ewen '20; tackles, Don Whitmore '44 and Frank Wickhorst '27; guards, "Babe" Brown '14 and Johnny Halligan '97; center, Emery "Swede" Larsen '22; quarterback, Bill Ingram '19; half backs, Fred "Buzz" Borries '35 and Tom Hamilton '27; fullback, Jack Dalton '12.. Hamilton, Brown, Ewen and Halligan are rear admirals. Foreword of the book is by Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, 1906 fullback who caught the first game-winning TD-pass in college football. It was against Army.

Princeton-Cornell Game on Saturday To Decide 1951 Ivy League Pennant

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—The champion of the Ivy League probably will be crowned Saturday when Princeton's Tigers, present titleholders, clash with the Big Red of Cornell in a battle of the unbeaten at Palmer Stadium.

Princeton will take the field with a 17-game winning streak under its belt, hopeful of maintaining the longest victory skein of any major college eleven. The Tigers' last defeat came at the hands of Cornell by a 13-12 decision in October, 1949.

The Nassau gridmen, in preparing for their crucial test, had a breather with Lafayette last Saturday. Using their regulars sparingly and clearing the bench, the Tigers nevertheless ran roughshod over their weak opponents, 60-7, for their fourth success of the campaign.

All-American halfback Dick Kazmaier and his capable understudy, Bill Tryon, excelled offensively for Charley Caldwell's powerful single-wing exponents.

Cornell Primed

Cornell, anxious to avenge for last year's 27-0 loss to Princeton, warmed up to the arduous task by overwhelming Yale, 27-0, for its fourth straight triumph. Quarterback Rocco Calvo and halfback Stu Merz were instrumental cogs as the Big Red's vaunted T-formation functioned smoothly against the Bulldogs.

Harvard plays host to an improving Dartmouth team in the only other Ivy League affair this week. The Cantabs edged Army, 22-21, on Saturday, while the Hanover Indians bowled over Syracuse, 14-0.

Pennsylvania and Columbia, rivals last Saturday in the big game of the east, meet the winless service elevens this week. Penn, 28-13 victors over the Lions, takes on Navy at Franklin Field, and Columbia opposes Army at West Point.

Columbia, suffering its initial setback of the season, has not defeated Penn since 1937.

In another pair of non-league frays, Yale will entertain Colgate and Brown will take on Holy Cross at Providence, R. I. Brown was downed by Colgate, 32-14, last week.

Surprise Loss to Harvard Leaves Only Little Citadel As Possible Army Victim, but Coach Blaik Isn't Sure

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP)—"Every time we lose a game it makes it just that much harder."

So said Coach Earl (Red) Blaik today, acknowledging it's quite possible that Army's once-mighty football team will go through the season without a single victory.

"The boys' spirits are still good—as good as they can be under the circumstances, that is — but it's been mighty rough," Blaik added.

"Every team is playing us as if we're the Army of old. They're fired up—out to beat us. That's only natural. And, as for us, we've made a lot of mistakes just as any young team would.

"We're a very generous team. We give the other side a lot of breaks with fumbles, penalties for over-eagerness and so forth. But, that also can be expected."

The Black Knights, whose inspiring roster of talent was shattered by the exam-cribbing scandal at the Point this summer, have lost their first four games, and certainly the toughest opposition lies ahead.

7—Villanova—21
14—Northwestern—20
14—Dartmouth—28
21—Harvard—22
Oct. 27—Columbia
Nov. 3—Southern California
Nov. 10—The Citadel
Nov. 17—Pennsylvania
Dec. 1—Navy

Citadel Threat

Based on records, Army's light, inexperienced legions would be figured to have a chance in only one of these games. That is the Citadel, to be played at West Point early next month.

"Our scouts tell us that the Citadel has the finest personnel it has ever had," Blaik said. "Certainly, we are not counting that game in the bag. We know they will be tough.

"Reports we have from Southern California, Columbia, Penn and the Navy are far from encouraging. These are very sharp teams and out of our class."

Army was favored in the Dartmouth and Harvard games but the experts were not reckoning with the Cadets' extreme youth.

"We have had a plebe, Peter Vann of Buffalo, playing quarterback for us ever since Fred Meyers was hurt in the Northwestern game. We also have a plebe, Dick Reich, at fullback.

"As you know, the rest of the squad had no varsity experience before this season. The boys are eager and willing enough but they're still young and they make costly errors.

"We aren't surprised. We didn't expect to whip this kind of schedule."

Ends Ed Weaver of Kingston, N. Y., and John Krobock of Hazelton, Pa., were the only varsity players not affected by the mass dismissals following the honor code scandal. Krobock has had an injured leg and can't play. Weaver recently was declared ineligible.

That left Army's fortunes entirely in the hands of the 1950 plebe squad, plus a few B-squad and 1951 plebe members.

T.C.U. First

Now the standings look like something dreamed up on Mars. Texas Christian is in first place with a 2-0 slate and Texas, Texas A. and M. and Southern Methodist share the cellar with 0-1 records. Baylor, which whipped Texas Tech, 40-20, is the only league team with a clean record, 4-0. However, only one victory has been scored over a league opponent.

Ohio State was the choice to win the Big 10 crown in pre-season forecasts. But the Buckeyes have been staggering and after their 32-10 shellacking at the hands of Indiana, one of the league have-nots, they will be lucky to make it.

Defending champion Michigan heads the class with two wins and no losses after polishing off Iowa, 21-0. But the Wolverines still must play Minnesota, Illinois, Northwestern and Ohio State, so the race is far from settled.

In the South, Tennessee, Maryland and Georgia Tech still are in the thick of the fight for top national honors. Tennessee was the prediction for the No. 1 team in the land before the season started, and the Vols have held up admirably, their latest conquest being a 27-13 operation on Alabama.

But the South in general has been weaker than expected and this more than any other factor, probably has kept the Vols from going to the top in the weekly Associated Press poll. Maryland, which probably will win the Southern Conference title, roared past North Carolina, 14-7, and Georgia Tech knocked Auburn from the ranks of the undefeated, 27-7.

In the East in general, and the Ivy League in particular, the situation also is confused, but it should be ironed out come Saturday when Princeton and Cornell clash. The winner should wind up with the crown. The Tigers warmed up to their task by winning their 17th straight, this one from Lafayette 60-7, while Cornell polished off Yale, 27-0.

Harvard beat Army, 22-21; Oklahoma, last year's mythical national champion, stopped Kansas 33-21, and Notre Dame overwhelmed Pitt, 33-0 in other major games.

The Syracuse Bowling Association—a powerful influence in recruiting support for Kingston's successful bid for the 1952 New York State bowling championships—has further reiterated its interest in local tenpinning by reserving dates for 150 teams.

John O. Martino, former president of the American Bowling Congress, and Bernard W. Sarno, a state power, have pledged more teams than any city association in the state.

The New York Bowling Association, through its secretary John Goldsmith, has advance reservations for 100 teams. State Secretary George Obenauer's Buffalo Association so far has reserved 70 units. New York and Buffalo will both send much larger delegations.

Interesting Item—The Rochester Association which Kingston beat for the tournament site has made reservations for only four teams.

● Flotsam and Jetsam:

Writes an irked Yankee fan: "After reading and hearing all those Giant alibis about that postponement, I am wondering if the Yankees played the Giants or the Weather Bureau in the World Series. . . ." Commenting on optimism in Oneonta about 1952 plans for the Can-Am League, Fran Regan, the Rome Daily Sentinel sports editor penned these enchanting lines: "There have been a number of interesting innovations tried and many more proposed by the Canadian-American League during its years of existence but no one in that circuit ever had the idea of running a one-team league." Brother Regan's subtle rejoinder is more truth than poetry. One baseball figure told us he thought OB should return to Kingston next year because of the 300th anniversary program. Perhaps the Chamber of Commerce would be interested in taking over the promotion and offering it as one of the highlights of the celebration. It is obvious that if OB is to continue, new money and new faces must be interested in the project.

Jake Senor, the downtown restaurateur who switched horses more often than a Pony Express rider in the late stages of the major league season, greeted his customers the day after the Yankee Series triumph with this printed announcement: Next game, April 20, 1952, Yankees vs. Washington, Vic Raschi vs. Bob Porterfield. Could he have switched to the Yankees after the sixth game of the Series?

● The Eleventh Frame:

Sue Heins, the tall blonde starlet who was heading for bowling stardom until floored by illness, will soon receive a diamond medal from the New York State Woman's Bowling Association for rolling the highest score in the state last year. It was a 289. A big shindig will be held in conjunction with the prize award on Nov. 2. Are you clear on the new ABC substitution rule? It states: "After a game has started, no changes shall be made in the order of the players during such game, except that the captain may replace any of his players by another qualified substitute at any time. When a substitution is made during a game, the score of such game shall be credited to the player who bowls the greatest number of frames in that game. (The old system credited the game to the starter regardless of the number of frames he bowled). When the division of frames is equal the score shall be credited to the first player sharing the equal division of frames. A player once removed from a game cannot return in the same game. Scores bowled through the efforts of more than one individual player shall not qualify for any ABC or local high individual score awards. Further, the old substitution rule required an open frame before a substitution. This is no longer necessary.

"Gangway For the Navy," the recently published story of football at the U. S. Naval Academy from 1879 to 1950, named the all-time Middie eleven. The first team selections. Ends, Dick Duden '45 and Eddie Ewen '20; tackles, Don Whitmore '44 and Frank Wickhorst '27; guards, "Babe" Brown '14 and Johnny Halligan '97; center, Emery "Swede" Larsen '22; quarterback, Bill Ingram '19; half backs, Fred "Buzz" Borries '35 and Tom Hamilton '27; fullback, Jack Dalton '12.. Hamilton, Brown, Ewen and Halligan are rear admirals. Foreword of the book is by Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, 1906 fullback who caught the first game-winning TD-pass in college football. It was against Army.

Poughkeepsie High wrapped up Port Jervis, 25 to 6, Saturday at Memorial Field for its second straight DUSO League football victory and set the stage for a climactic clash with Newburgh Academy on Nov. 10 in the Hill City.

The Goldbacks, meanwhile, continued to murder capital district opposition by crushing Albany High, 39 to 0.

In another area game, Roosevelt High edged Highland High, 8 to 6.

Sam Kalloch's two shifty backfield stars — Ronald "Muzzie" Wright and Leroy "Eggie" Johnson—who ruined K.H.S. burned up the gridiron as the Blues outrushed the Red Raiders, 202 to 179.

Wright reeled off three touchdowns, going one yard, eight yards and then galloping 55 yards. Johnson scored on a 29-yard burst off tackle.

Port Jervis drew first blood on Dick Shewchuk's 40-yard sprint in the first three minutes but the Blues moved ahead 13-6 at the end of the quarter and were never in trouble again.

BRINGING DOWN A GIANT

Forrest Griffith, New York Giants halfback, wards off a lunge at his head by Philadelphia Eagles back Dan Sandifer (center) just before ball carrier was stopped after five-yard gain in first quarter of their game at the Polo Grounds. Eagles back Joe Sutton (45), who finally made the tackle, moves into position to bring Griffith down. Giants won, 26-24.

Princeton-Cornell Game on Saturday To Decide 1951 Ivy League Pennant

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—The champion of the Ivy League probably will be crowned Saturday when Princeton's Tigers, present titleholders, clash with the Big Red of Cornell in a battle of the unbeaten at Palmer Stadium.

Princeton will take the field with a 17-game winning streak under its belt, hopeful of maintaining the longest victory skein of any major college eleven. The Tigers' last defeat came at the hands of Cornell by a 13-12 decision in October, 1949.

The Nassau gridmen, in preparing for their crucial test, had a breather with Lafayette last Saturday. Using their regulars sparingly and clearing the bench, the Tigers nevertheless ran roughshod over their weak opponents, 60-7, for their fourth success of the campaign.

All-American halfback Dick Kazmaier and his capable understudy, Bill Tryon, excelled offensively for Charley Caldwell's powerful single-wing exponents.

Cornell Primed

Cornell, anxious to avenge for last year's 27-0 loss to Princeton, warmed up to the arduous task by overwhelming Yale, 27-0, for its fourth straight triumph. Quarterback Rocco Calvo and halfback Stu Merz were instrumental cogs as the Big Red's vaunted T-formation functioned smoothly against the Bulldogs.

Harvard plays host to an improving Dartmouth team in the only other Ivy League affair this week. The Cantabs edged Army, 22-21, on Saturday, while the Hanover Indians bowled over Syracuse, 14-0.

Pennsylvania and Columbia, rivals last Saturday in the big game of the east, meet the winless service elevens this week. Penn, 28-13 victors over the Lions, takes on Navy at Franklin Field, and Columbia opposes Army at West Point.

Columbia, suffering its initial setback of the season, has not defeated Penn since 1937.

In another pair of non-league frays, Yale will entertain Colgate and Brown will take on Holy Cross at Providence, R. I. Brown was downed by Colgate, 32-14, last week.

Surprise Loss to Harvard Leaves Only Little Citadel As Possible Army Victim, but Coach Blaik Isn't Sure

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP)—"Every time we lose a game it makes it just that much harder."

So said Coach Earl (Red) Blaik today, acknowledging it's quite possible that Army's once-mighty football team will go through the season without a single victory.

"The boys' spirits are still good—as good as they can be under the circumstances, that is — but it's been mighty rough," Blaik added.

"Every team is playing us as if we're the Army of old. They're fired up—out to beat us. That's only natural. And, as for us, we've made a lot of mistakes just as any young team would.

"We're a very generous team. We give the other side a lot of breaks with fumbles, penalties for over-eagerness and so forth. But, that also can be expected."

The Black Knights, whose inspiring roster of talent was shattered by the exam-cribbing scandal at the Point this summer, have lost their first four games, and certainly the toughest opposition lies ahead.

Here's the team's record and remaining schedule:

7—Villanova—21
14—Northwestern—20
14—Dartmouth—28
21—Harvard—22
Oct. 27—Columbia
Nov. 3—Southern California
Nov. 10—The Citadel
Nov. 17—Pennsylvania
Dec. 1—Navy

Citadel Threat

Based on records, Army's light, inexperienced legions would be figured to have a chance in only one of these games. That is the Citadel, to be played at West Point early next month.

"Our scouts tell us that the Citadel has the finest personnel it has ever had," Blaik said. "Certainly, we are not counting that game in the bag. We know they will be tough.

"Reports we have from Southern California, Columbia, Penn and the Navy are far from encouraging. These are very sharp teams and out of our class."

Army was favored in the Dartmouth and Harvard games but the experts were not reckoning with the Cadets' extreme youth.

"We have had a plebe, Peter Vann of Buffalo, playing quarterback for us ever since Fred Meyers was hurt in the Northwestern game. We also have a plebe, Dick Reich, at fullback.

"As you know, the rest of the squad had no varsity experience before this season. The boys are eager and willing enough but they're still young and they make costly errors.

"We aren't surprised. We didn't expect to whip this kind of schedule."

Ends Ed Weaver of Kingston, N. Y., and John Krobock of Hazelton, Pa., were the only varsity players not affected by the mass dismissals following the honor code scandal. Krobock has had an injured leg and can't play. Weaver recently was declared ineligible.

That left Army's fortunes entirely in the hands of the 1950 plebe squad, plus a few B-squad and 1951 plebe members.

Jennie Spada Pounds 590

Jennie Spada, the Central Recreation alleys' candidate for female bowling stardom, continued to assault the pins in heavy style last night. Elston Keglers Upset Kerhonkson

Berra-Rizzuto Game Canceled

Cold weather and threatening skies forced postponement of the Yogi Berra-Phil Rizzuto exhibition game scheduled for Sunday at municipal stadium.

Promoter Fred Davi canceled the contest at 11 a. m., following a telephone conversation with Berra and Rizzuto and Al Cuccinello, who was to be in charge of the All Stars opposition to the Yankee aces. At the time the thermometer was hovering in the low 50s.

Several hundred fans who did not catch the announcement of the postponement on area radio stations showed up at the stadium.

Davi announced that refunds for tickets numbered from 1 to 500 would be made at the S & C Lunch on the Strand. Refunds for the ticket series from 501 to 1000 are available at Tommy Maines' Sport Shop on Broadway.

SQUIRREL HUNTING

FROM DAY-BREAK UNTIL JUST AFTER SUN-UP IS THE BEST TIME TO FIND SQUIRRELS ON THE MOVE. LATE AFTERNOON IS THE NEXT BEST TIME. A CRISP CLEAR AND QUIET MORNING IS BEST FOR LOCATING NUT CRACKERS WHETHER YOU MAY BE SOFTLY STEALING THROUGH THE WOODS OR SITTING MOTIONLESS AND QUIET AGAINST A TREE TRUNK. DON'T SHOOT THE FIRST ONE TO APPEAR WHEN SITTING, WAIT A BIT AND OTHERS MAY FOLLOW. UPON KILLING ONE, LEAVE IT LAY AND YOU MAY GET MORE BEFORE MOVING ON BY REMAINING STILL.

The local office of the State Conservation Department today issued a clarification of the hours for hunting ducks. The hours are from one half hour before sunrise to one hour before sunset. A recent published notice from the state department was in error.

Unbeaten Giants Point for Browns

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—The New York Giants, only team holding an advantage over the Cleveland Browns, take unbeaten record to the gridiron of the once defeated National Football League champions in the pro circuit's No. 1 game Sunday.

The Giants, with a 13-13 tie by Pittsburgh the only blot on their record, chalked up their third victory of the campaign yesterday with a great third period scoring splurge that downed the Philadelphia Eagles, 26-24, in an American conference tilt.

At the same time, the Browns' defense also proved their best offense as they blanked Pittsburgh's Steelers, 17-0, for their third success in four outings.

Since their organization, the Browns have been defeated only six times and two of the setbacks were by the Giants last year—the first year Cleveland played in the NFL. The other four defeats were in the defunct All-American Conference.

Tripped Browns Twice

Steve Owen's boys whipped the Browns, 6-0 and 17-13, in regular season games but bowed, 6-3, in the American Conference playoff. Then Paul Brown's Cleveland outfit beat Los Angeles in the league playoff, 30-28.

The Giants packed all of their scoring against the Eagles yesterday into the third period and the first minute of the final quarter with Ray Poole's 12-yard field goal providing the deciding margin.

Washington defeated the Chicago Cards, 7-3, in the other American conference game.

Meantime, the battle for the National conference lead was reduced to a two-team affair—Chicago's Bears and Los Angeles. A week ago five teams were deadlocked.

The Bears defeated San Francisco 13-7, and the Rams, exploding for all of their points in the second half, shutout Green Bay 28-0. The New York Yanks tied the Detroit Lions' 24-24 in the third division contest.

UCLA Heaps Honors On Jackie Robinson

Los Angeles, Oct. 22 (AP) — UCLA's greatest all around athlete will be grand marshal of the school's 25th annual homecoming week celebration Nov. 2-3.

He is Jackie Robinson, second baseman of the Brooklyn Dodgers. The first Negro to play major league baseball, Robinson first won fame at UCLA where before World War 2 he was a star in four sports—football, baseball, basketball and track.

Robinson is the first athlete chosen to reign over a UCLA homecoming. He is now on a baseball tour of the South.

Newburgh JVs Defeat Maroon Eleven, 6-2

Long Pass Sets Up Scoring Play

Newburgh Jayvees capitalized on a poor Kingston High Jayvee punt in the second period to score a touchdown that was sufficient to edge the Maroon Jayvees, 6 to 2, Saturday at the municipal stadium.

Kingston's lone score was the result of a safety in the second period, although Coach Bob DeFeis' gridders missed out on a couple of other good chances.

The Maroons yielded the touchdown after choking off a Newburgh threat on the five. Suto, Newburgh sub back, romped 42 yards to the five but four plays later the Hill City gridders hadn't advanced a foot.

Kingston kicked out but the ball travelled only to the local 27 where on second down, Bernie Ward pitched to Bill Zodikoff on the 15 and he was chased out of bounds on the 1-yard line. D'Auitolo rammed over for the score.

A bad pass from the Newburgh 11 sailed over the receiver's head and he was snowed under by a host of Kingston tacklers behind his goal line.

A 43-yard pass play with Roger Billings on the receiving end carried from the Newburgh 48 to the five but the first play from scrimmage resulted in a five-yard loss. A line buck and two forwards failed. The teams battled on even terms in desultory action in the second half.

India's Naval Commander

New Delhi (AP) — India's naval squadron has a new British commander, a veteran who served brilliantly in the Mediterranean area during World War 2. He is Rear Adm. N. V. Dickinson,, appointed to succeed another Briton, Rear Adm. G. Barnard, as chief officer afloat in the Indian navy. India, only four years old as an independent nation, is still training its leaders, and British officers hold top positions in both the Indian navy and air force. An Indian, Gen. K. M. Berra-Rizzuto Game Canceled

Cold weather and threatening skies forced postponement of the Yogi Berra-Phil Rizzuto exhibition game scheduled for Sunday at municipal stadium.

Promoter Fred Davi canceled the contest at 11 a. m., following a telephone conversation with Berra and Rizzuto and Al Cuccinello, who was to be in charge of the All Stars opposition to the Yankee aces. At the time the thermometer was hovering in the low 50s.

Several hundred fans who did not catch the announcement of the postponement on area radio stations showed up at the stadium.

Davi announced that refunds for tickets numbered from 1 to 500 would be made at the S & C Lunch on the Strand. Refunds for the ticket series from 501 to 1000 are available at Tommy Maines' Sport Shop on Broadway.

SQUIRREL HUNTING 10-22

FROM DAY-BREAK UNTIL JUST AFTER SUN-UP IS THE BEST TIME TO FIND SQUIRRELS ON THE MOVE. LATE AFTERNOON IS THE NEXT BEST TIME. A CRISP CLEAR AND QUIET MORNING IS BEST FOR LOCATING NUT CRACKERS WHETHER YOU MAY BE SOFTLY STEALING THROUGH THE WOODS OR SITTING MOTIONLESS AND QUIET AGAINST A TREE TRUNK. DON'T SHOOT THE FIRST ONE TO APPEAR WHEN SITTING, WAIT A BIT AND OTHERS MAY FOLLOW. UPON KILLING ONE, LEAVE IT LAY AND YOU MAY GET MORE BEFORE MOVING ON BY REMAINING STILL.

Unbeaten Giants Point for Browns

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—The New York Giants, only team holding an advantage over the Cleveland Browns, take unbeaten record to the gridiron of the once defeated National Football League champions in the pro circuit's No. 1 game Sunday.

The Giants, with a 13-13 tie by Pittsburgh the only blot on their record, chalked up their third victory of the campaign yesterday with a great third period scoring splurge that downed the Philadelphia Eagles, 26-24, in an American conference tilt.

At the same time, the Browns' defense also proved their best offense as they blanked Pittsburgh's Steelers, 17-0, for their third success in four outings.

Since their organization, the Browns have been defeated only six times and two of the setbacks were by the Giants last year—the first year Cleveland played in the NFL. The other four defeats were in the defunct All-American Conference.

Tripped Browns Twice

Steve Owen's boys whipped the Browns, 6-0 and 17-13, in regular season games but bowed, 8-3, in the American Conference playoff. Then Paul Brown's Cleveland outfit beat Los Angeles in the league playoff, 30-28.

The Giants packed all of their scoring against the Eagles yesterday into the third period and the first minute of the final quarter with Ray Poole's 12-yard field goal providing the deciding margin.

Washington defeated the Chicago Cards, 7-3, in the other American conference game.

Meantime, the battle for the National conference lead was reduced to a two-team affair—Chicago's Bears and Los Angeles. A week ago five teams were deadlocked.

The Bears defeated San Francisco 13-7, and the Rams, exploding for all of their points in the second half, shutout Green Bay 28-0. The New York Yanks tied the Detroit Lions' 24-24 in the third division contest.

UCLA Heaps Honors On Jackie Robinson

Los Angeles, Oct. 22 (AP) — UCLA's greatest all around athlete will be grand marshal of the school's 25th annual homecoming week celebration Nov. 2-3.

He is Jackie Robinson, second baseman of the Brooklyn Dodgers. The first Negro to play major league baseball, Robinson first won fame at UCLA where before World War 2 he was a star in four sports—football, baseball, basketball and track.

Robinson is the first athlete chosen to reign over a UCLA homecoming. He is now on a baseball tour of the South.

Newburgh JVs Defeat Maroon Eleven, 6-2

Long Pass Sets Up Scoring Play

Newburgh Jayvees capitalized on a poor Kingston High Jayvee punt in the second period to score a touchdown that was sufficient to edge the Maroon Jayvees, 6 to 2, Saturday at the municipal stadium.

Kingston's lone score was the result of a safety in the second period, although Coach Bob DeFeis' gridders missed out on a couple of other good chances.

The Maroons yielded the touchdown after choking off a Newburgh threat on the five. Suto, Newburgh sub back, romped 42 yards to the five but four plays later the Hill City gridders hadn't advanced a foot.

Kingston kicked out but the ball travelled only to the local 27 where on second down, Bernie Ward pitched to Bill Zodikoff on the 15 and he was chased out of bounds on the 1-yard line. D'Auitolo rammed over for the score.

A bad pass from the Newburgh 11 sailed over the receiver's head and he was snowed under by a host of Kingston tacklers behind his goal line.

A 43-yard pass play with Roger Billings on the receiving end carried from the Newburgh 48 to the five but the first play from scrimmage resulted in a five-yard loss. A line buck and two forwards failed. The teams battled on even terms in desultory action in the second half.

India's Naval Commander

New Delhi (AP) — India's naval squadron has a new British commander, a veteran who served brilliantly in the Mediterranean area during World War 2. He is Rear Adm. N. V. Dickinson,, appointed to succeed another Briton, Rear Adm. G. Barnard, as chief officer afloat in the Indian navy. India, only four years old as an independent nation, is still training its leaders, and British officers hold top positions in both the Indian navy and air force. An Indian, Gen. K. M. Shortages Will Not Affect C-H Projects—Acker

The completion of Central Hudson's construction program will not be affected by the nationwide critical materials' shortage, according to Ernest R. Acker, president of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation. The main features of the Neversink hydroelectric plant and the first unit of the Danskammer Point steam station are far enough along so that their completion should be near schedule, he added.

Acker explained that materials for these projects, which when completed will almost triple the company's generating capacity, were ordered long before the present emergency.

The Danskammer Point steam station is scheduled to be completed by the first of the year, and the Neversink project, sometime next July.

Although copper, steel and aluminum allocations are arriving close to schedule for these construction projects, Acker continued, the shortage of critical materials might restrict future construction. In order that the campany know its future needs, Acker urged all industrial and residential customers, who anticipate requesting a new electric service, to contact their local Central Hudson office at once.

The recent copper strike, during which an estimated 40,000 tons of copper were lost, has hurt the electric industry's expansion program, Acker said. "We are forced to use aluminum in place of copper in certain phases of our distribution system," he said.

Desmond Would End Any 'Cash Alliances'

Albany, Oct. 22 (AP)—A Republican senator wants the 1952 legislature to map an attack on what he terms "cash alliances" between political bosses and applicants for public licences.

Thomas C. Desmond of Newburgh last night urged the State Crime Commission to aid the lawmakers by recommending measures that would "attack one of the fundamental weaknesses of our democratic system, the financing of political parties through favors."

Desmond declared in a statement that the commission's investigation of Staten Island corruption had "dramatically exposed the cash alliances possible between party bosses and applicants for public licenses."

VFW Would Have Bingo, Raffles Okayed

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP)—Legalization of bingo and raffles — when conducted by certain organizations — was urged on the legislature yesterday by a Veterans of Foreign Wars district meeting.

The proposal was made by 1,500 delegates representing 200 VFW Posts from New York city to Albany.

A resolution noted that bingo games have become popular in many communities, with the proceeds going to welfare and charitable causes. It urged that the games be legalized for non-profit fraternal, civic and veterans groups.

The veterans also adopted a resolution urging that Red China's "source of supply" for the Korean war be bombed, and that either the war be prosecuted fully or American troops be withdrawn.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Don't Get Stuck, Use Your Brains

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

I often wonder why people do it. A bridge player will know in advance that a certain play cannot possibly work, but he'll try it anyway. Why doesn't he try something else?

Take today's hand, for example. South shouldn't have been playing the hand to begin with. North would have had an easy time with a contract of three-no-trump, or even with five diamonds. The actual contract of four hearts was the least desirable of the possible game contracts—but it should have been made.

West opened the jack of spades, and declarer finessed dummy's queen. This lost to East's king, much to declarer's disappointment. Nobody can blame South for taking this finesse, and nobody can be surprised at his chagrin when the finesse lost.

East returned the six of spades to dummy's ace, and declarer finessed the queen of hearts. This finesse lost to West's king, but this time South knew in advance that the finesse would lose. He knew that West had made a vulnerable overcall on a jack-high suit; so it was clear that West needed all the missing high cards to justify his bid.

The result was exactly what South expected. He lost a second trump trick to East, and also lost a trick to the ace of clubs. Down one.

Now, there was a way to make the game contract so there was no need for South to grit his teeth and take a finesse that was bound to lose. The right play is to take the ace of trumps at the third trick, after the first two spade tricks have been played. Then South leads a low trump from his hand in the hope that West will have to play the king whether he likes it or not.

Actually, West would have to play the king of hearts. That would leave South in position to draw East's remaining trump with the queen of heart's. South would lose only one trump trick, and would therefore makes his contract.

The Mature Parent

Child Distrusts Parents Rude to Each Other

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Whenever Mr. and Mrs. B. disagree about anything—the children's discipline, the price of a dress or the business reputation of Mrs. B.'s brother — Mrs. B. says, "Oh, stop making mountains out of molehills. You're so fussy that nobody could live with you in peace.

Strangely, Mrs. B. never associates the fact that her children often take a slighting and contemptuous tone toward their parents with her own discourtesy toward their father.

In the 19th Century, English governesses frowned darkly on what they called "personal remarks." They trained children not to use them. Like court judges who won't let lawyers make personal remarks to each other, the English governesses knew that such remarks only embitter. They don't solve disagreements.

Parents who go in for this form of discourtesy toward each other create and maintain an uneasy atmosphere in their homes. That atmosphere is so nervously exhausting to children that they react with irritation and impudence.

If Mrs. B. dislikes her husband's habit of fussing over what she considers trifling matters, a fortright, honest explosion of her feelings will be far less damaging to her children than her never-ceasing criticism. Unfortunately for her own and her family's security, she prefers to express her hostility toward Mr. B. by treating him discourteously.

I find it most intriguing that one of the dictionary's definitions of discourtesy is "disorder."

It is indeed disorderly of us to refuse to come to terms with our less pleasant emotions about a husband or wife.

DISCOURTESY CAN DESTROY SELF-RESPECT

The National Association for Mental Health lists one of the traits of mature people as the ability to "shape their environment whenever possible and to adjust to it whenever necessary."

It is certainly no cinch for Mrs. B. to live with a husband who exaggerates problems. This habit of Mr. B's can only be solved by his wife's love, understanding and patient encouragement. If she cannot or will not give them to him, and so shape her environment the way she wants it to be, then she should accept her environment. Her refusal to either reshape it or to adjust to it suggests that Mrs. B. is a little girl herself, unable to make a decision on her problem.

Discourtesy in marriage can ultimately destroy the self-respect of the partner who dishes it out as well as that of the one who accepts it.

There is something awful to me about disparaging personal remarks, anyway. They are the subtle bully's device for making others squirm through hostility that is secret and unfocused. When we use them to the fathers and mothers of our children, we are playing foul. We are snipers, guerrilla fighters without the courage to adjust to our problem, without the love to heal it.

Children sense these lacks in fathers and mothers who are rude to each other. And they naturally develop distrust of their right to authority.

clearly his real feeling toward the president—which was that of utter contempt. He made it plain that he had gone to the White House only to help his friend, Mr. Raskob, get some of his money out of a losing venture."

"In buying the building from Mr. Raskob and Governor Smith, the President would be doing something for the two men who had done most to make him president," Mr. Jones writes.

The purchase of the Rogers estate, adjoining the Roosevelt barony at Hyde Park, was reported in these essays before the war and, as far as I know was ignored by most of our journalism. Roosevelt was afraid that Father Divine, the leader of a Negro cult, was about to buy the Rogers place and, for all his pretense of abhorrence of "segregation," he wanted no Negroes near him. Already Father Divine had bought a rundown estate across the Hudson.

Jones says Roosevelt thought the Department of Agriculture should buy the Rogers place for reforestation and other experimental works. Working through three holding companies in a complex process which concealed the actual meaning of the deal. Roosevelt acquired the privilege of the Rogers place for the rest of his life as though he had bought it himself and kept the Negro colony away. During the war, he used it for a garrison of household troops, the 240th Battalion of Military Police, zone of the interior, special, which guarded his property, performed flashy salutes, cleared brush and kept his road in repair. The Department of Agriculture never made any use of it.

"G. Hall Roosevelt, the President's cousin and Mrs. Roosevelt's brother, occasionally called us from the White House about loans," the story goes. "A call from the White House is always impressive. In those days it was intended to be so by some who went there to do their telephoning, particularly Hall Roosevelt and Tom Corcoran. I am sorry to say that this practice has been abused by some in more recent years.

Two or three loans were made in which it appeared that Hall Roosevelt had some kind of interest. In one instance we had authorized a 'work loan' of $1,250,000 to mine gold in Alaska. * * * A day or two after we had authorized the loan, Tommy the Cork said the President was very anxious for us to make this Alaskan loan, that Hall Roosevelt could get a job with the company * * * and that the President wanted to get Hall as far from the White House as possible."

Mr. Jones says Hall soon flew up to Alaska but adds that the efforts of neither Hall nor Tommy the Cork were influential. The borrower got only half as much as he had asked for.

The story of the trimming of John Hartford and others who were naive enough to trust President Roosevelt and his son, Elliott, is the most disgraceful chapter in the history of the presidency. This expose exploded not long after Roosevelt died and the House Ways and Means Committee tried to suppress the truth and wrote a partisan whitewash. Elliott never repaid a dollar of a total of about $275,000 endorsed by his old man and the net result was that the common man through his taxes had the privilege of paying Elliott's alimony to his second wife and their children.

Royal Couple to Get Three Days of Rest

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 22 (AP)—Another round of official inspections, followed by three days of rest, were on the schedule today for Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

The royal couple, nearing the halfway mark of their cross-Canada junket, arrived here from Vancouver yesterday aboard the Canadian destroyer Crusader.

Today's round of activities included a reception at the City Hall, a meeting with members of the provincial legislature and their wives, and with chiefs of various Indian bands, a tour of the Esquimault dockyard and a visit to the Royal Roads Armed Services Academy.

At 6 p. m., the royal party heads for Eagle Crest Lodge, 125 miles north of here, for three days of undisturbed rest.

Higher Taxes Take Effect November 1

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—Higher taxes on income and many things people buy will go into effect Nov. 1. They are included in the new tax act expected to increase the federal revenue by $5,691,000,000 a year.

In signing the tax bill Saturday, President Truman said this is not enough and he will call on Congress in January to improve the tax laws.

Mr. Truman has asked for $10,000,000,000 in new revenue. He signed the measure calling for a lesser amount, he said, not because it is a good bill but because "we badly need these revenues to help pay for the strong defenses we are building."

The measure provides for individual tax boosts ranging from 11 to 12 per cent for most taxpayers; excise (sales) tax increases on a long list of items including liquor, gasoline and household appliances, and bigger taxes for corporations.

Mr. Truman criticized provisions in the law which he said give wealthy persons new chances for escaping their share of the tax load "through such devices as excessively liberal 'capital gains' provisions, family partnerships, and excessive depletion allowances on oil and gas and certain mineral properties."

Shortages Will Not Affect C-H Projects—Acker

The completion of Central Hudson's construction program will not be affected by the nationwide critical materials' shortage, according to Ernest R. Acker, president of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation. The main features of the Neversink hydroelectric plant and the first unit of the Danskammer Point steam station are far enough along so that their completion should be near schedule, he added.

Acker explained that materials for these projects, which when completed will almost triple the company's generating capacity, were ordered long before the present emergency.

The Danskammer Point steam station is scheduled to be completed by the first of the year, and the Neversink project, sometime next July.

Although copper, steel and aluminum allocations are arriving close to schedule for these construction projects, Acker continued, the shortage of critical materials might restrict future construction. In order that the campany know its future needs, Acker urged all industrial and residential customers, who anticipate requesting a new electric service, to contact their local Central Hudson office at once.

The recent copper strike, during which an estimated 40,000 tons of copper were lost, has hurt the electric industry's expansion program, Acker said. "We are forced to use aluminum in place of copper in certain phases of our distribution system," he said.

Desmond Would End Any 'Cash Alliances'

Albany, Oct. 22 (AP)—A Republican senator wants the 1952 legislature to map an attack on what he terms "cash alliances" between political bosses and applicants for public licences.

Thomas C. Desmond of Newburgh last night urged the State Crime Commission to aid the lawmakers by recommending measures that would "attack one of the fundamental weaknesses of our democratic system, the financing of political parties through favors."

Desmond declared in a statement that the commission's investigation of Staten Island corruption had "dramatically exposed the cash alliances possible between party bosses and applicants for public licenses."

VFW Would Have Bingo, Raffles Okayed

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP)—Legalization of bingo and raffles — when conducted by certain organizations — was urged on the legislature yesterday by a Veterans of Foreign Wars district meeting.

The proposal was made by 1,500 delegates representing 200 VFW Posts from New York city to Albany.

A resolution noted that bingo games have become popular in many communities, with the proceeds going to welfare and charitable causes. It urged that the games be legalized for non-profit fraternal, civic and veterans groups.

The veterans also adopted a resolution urging that Red China's "source of supply" for the Korean war be bombed, and that either the war be prosecuted fully or American troops be withdrawn.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Don't Get Stuck, Use Your Brains

BY OSWALD JACOBY

Written for NEA Service

I often wonder why people do it. A bridge player will know in advance that a certain play cannot possibly work, but he'll try it anyway. Why doesn't he try something else?

Take today's hand, for example. South shouldn't have been playing the hand to begin with. North would have had an easy time with a contract of three-no-trump, or even with five diamonds. The actual contract of four hearts was the least desirable of the possible game contracts—but it should have been made.

West opened the jack of spades, and declarer finessed dummy's queen. This lost to East's king, much to declarer's disappointment. Nobody can blame South for taking this finesse, and nobody can be surprised at his chagrin when the finesse lost.

East returned the six of spades to dummy's ace, and declarer finessed the queen of hearts. This finesse lost to West's king, but this time South knew in advance that the finesse would lose. He knew that West had made a vulnerable overcall on a jack-high suit; so it was clear that West needed all the missing high cards to justify his bid.

The result was exactly what South expected. He lost a second trump trick to East, and also lost a trick to the ace of clubs. Down one.

The royal couple, nearing the halfway mark of their cross-Canada junket, arrived here from Vancouver yesterday aboard the Canadian destroyer Crusader.

Today's round of activities included a reception at the City Hall, a meeting with members of the provincial legislature and their wives, and with chiefs of various Indian bands, a tour of the Esquimault dockyard and a visit to the Royal Roads Armed Services Academy.

At 6 p. m., the royal party heads for Eagle Crest Lodge, 125 miles north of here, for three days of undisturbed rest.

Higher Taxes Take Effect November 1

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—Higher taxes on income and many things people buy will go into effect Nov. 1. They are included in the new tax act expected to increase the federal revenue by $5,691,000,000 a year.

In signing the tax bill Saturday, President Truman said this is not enough and he will call on Congress in January to improve the tax laws.

Mr. Truman has asked for $10,000,000,000 in new revenue. He signed the measure calling for a lesser amount, he said, not because it is a good bill but because "we badly need these revenues to help pay for the strong defenses we are building."

The measure provides for individual tax boosts ranging from 11 to 12 per cent for most taxpayers; excise (sales) tax increases on a long list of items including liquor, gasoline and household appliances, and bigger taxes for corporations.

Mr. Truman criticized provisions in the law which he said give wealthy persons new chances for escaping their share of the tax load "through such devices as excessively liberal 'capital gains' provisions, family partnerships, and excessive depletion allowances on oil and gas and certain mineral properties."

Sutton Suffers Arm Injury in Hunting Accident

Oscar C. Sutton, 55, of the Onteora Trail was accidentally shot by a hunting companion Saturday afternoon, the sheriff's office reported.

Sutton, wounded in the right arm, shoulder and chest, was taken to Kingston Hospital, where his condition today was reported as "fair."

Three hunters, Joseph J. Reilly, his son, Joseph William Reilly, 19, and Sutton, all of whom live at R.D. 4, Box 57, Kingston, were in a line up the mountain behind Jud Haines garage about three miles from Kingston when the accident occurred about 1:45 p. m. Saturday.

Sheriff Cluett Schantz and Deputy Carl Cline reported the younger Reilly was in the center of the line and Sutton at the lower end near the railroad tracks. The 19-year-old youth told the officers he kicked up a cock pheasant and shot at it at an angle to the left when it was about three feet off the ground. The load of No. 6 shot from a double barrel gun missed the bird but struck Sutton, who apparently had worked his way a little ahead of the line of hunters, according to the sheriff's officer report.

Sutton was taken to a nearby house, from where Dr. Abraham Feldman was called to treat him. W. N. Conner, Inc., ambulance service conveyed Sutton to the hospital.

Civilian Defense Discussed by Vols

Woodstock, Oct. 22—The Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association met Thursday night at the Town Hall with George W. Gardner, of the C. A. Lynch Hose Company, Saugerties, president, presiding.

Considerable discussion took place on the role the volunteer fire companies of Ulster county will play in the Civilian Defense program. A test involving 13 counties will be held in the near future, at which time specified fire engines, according to age and equipment requirements, will meet at a given rendezvous, to proceed in convoy to a designated city.

During the meeting the Shawangunk Fire Company of Gardiner was voted to membership in the organization.

A minute of silence was observed in memory of Stanley Dempsey, of the Kingston Exempt Firemen, who died last Oct. 14.

The next regular meeting will be held at High Falls.

Blood Bank Party Set Monday, Nov. 5

Woodstock, Oct. 22—At a meeting Thursday night at the Town Hall called by Kenneth Wilson, town supervisor, for the purpose of making plans to remedy the urgent need for blood in the now deppleted Woodstock Blood Bank, it was decided by committee members to hold a blood bank party Monday, Nov. 5. All residents of the township have been asked to cooperate in this important project, and anyone wishing to donate blood will be provided with transportation to and from the City of Kingston Laboratory on that date and refreshments will be provided.

Kenneth Wilson introduced Mrs. Allan L. Hanstein who explained the functions of the blood bank and how each community may set up its own reserve of blood to be used by residents at any time.

"All blood given by the community," she said, "is placed to the credit of the community in the blood bank. Before a local resident uses blood from the bank, he or his family applies to the chairman of his township bank for credit and the chairman authorizes the use of a specific number of pints for the resident according to the amount of blood the township has deposited."

Mrs. Hanstein expressed appreciation for the work done during the past year by Warren Hutty, who will continue as temporary chairman of the Woodstock Blood Bank. Mr. Hutty will be assisted by the following committee: Mrs. Joseph Marr, Mrs. Aaron Hasbrouck, Mrs. Albert Montgomery, Mervin Doremus, Dr. Hans Cohn, La Monte Simpkins and William Hand.

Anyone desiring to join the blood bank party is asked to communicate with any member who will arrange to have the blood donor called for at his home at 6:30 p. m., Monday, Nov. 5.

Cooperative Early Mecca for Buyers Of Yule Presents

Woodstock, Oct. 22—No sooner has the first autumn leaf fallen and the woolens are taken out of moth balls, then the realization comes that Christmas will be here at almost any moment. Many wise shoppers have learned the value of making gift purchases early, enjoying the luxury of browsing in uncrowded shops amidst pleasant surroundings while the weather is still nice. Crafts Cooperative, conveniently located on the Woodstock village green has all of these advantages. With restaurants close by and the glorious autumn foliage on every side, a stop-off in the small but specious shop which is already carrying its Christmas line, would make an ideal interlude during a drive through the country for those in nearby cities.

As well as the regular line of craft work from which the shopper may choose a wide variety of gifts, there are a number of special articles for which orders are now being taken. There is also a wide range in price in the articles, from the expensive and handsomely wrought gift, to those not so expensive yet cleverly designed and executed offering the much sought after unusual present. In addition, many of the craftsmen will be working up to Christmas to produce the new and exciting pieces which come into the shop every day.

One of the newest and smartest additions to the line of table accessories are Mary D. Smith's crisp sets of four table mats adorned with a striking bamboo motif and matching napkins. They are both elegant and washable.

Edith Roberts Cook has added exciting color combinations to her linen sets, handkerchiefs and assorted pieces. Most useful and available in quantities are the stenciled Christmas note cards, bright with holiday cheer, but with plenty of writing space for the one-a-year letter.

Anyone who has started a collection of Alice Fischer's ceremic jewelry, or anyone who may be introduced to it through a gift this Christmas, will certainly be enticed by her newest group of shades delicate Dresden-like pastels which appear to be particularly luminous under artificial light and are ideal for evening as well as day wear.

The brilliantly hued enamel on copper ashtrays by Koskeline have a true Woodstock flavor enhanced by abstract designs. This year's line of handwoven ties are particularly fine in color and texture. Angela Von Den Dreisch's glittering silver and gold threaded linens are to be had in wide assortments, bags, table cloths, mats and small pieces.

A handsome novelty, guaranteed to please man or small boy is, the miniature lighthouse, hand carved wooden lamp by Reinhold Schmidt who also extends his craft to blond wood bowls and similar articles.

Emily Schaffert, of New Paltz, has contributed a number of soft cuddly baby quilts and Dolores Christiana's toys are well-worth a look. Since they first appeared in the show window the amusing little pipe cleaner dogs by Sal have been causing a considerable amount of comment and appear to be scampering all about the shop.

Christmas is coming and Craft Cooperative is well prepared to make it a merry one. The shop will be open every day from 1:30 to 5:30 p. m. except Thursdays, and Saturday's from 10 a. m. to 12 noon and from 1:30 to 5:30 p. m.

Drivers Arrested In Sunday Crashes

Two drivers were arrested following automobile mishaps in the city Sunday and one injury was reported in a slight accident Saturday.

Adolph Zerbst, 36, of St. Remy, was arrested on a charge of driving while intoxicated following an accident reported at 8:50 p. m., Sunday on Abeel street.

The case was adjourned for two weeks when he appeared before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today. He was represented by Attorney Frank Campochiaro.

The report by Officers Walter Van Steenburgh and Kenneth Gaffney said a Roosa taxi operated by Leo H. Sickles, 34 Fairmont avenue, was headed north on Abeel street when a sedan owned by Lawrence Russell, of St. Remy, and driven by Zerbst, struck the taxi in an attempt to pass it and forced it up on the curb.

The other accident reported at 4:52 a. m., Sunday was on Grand street near Ten Broeck avenue where a coupe owned and operated by William T. Mahoney, of 19 Derrenbacher street, and one driven by John Klonowski, 482 Wilbur avenue, were in collision.

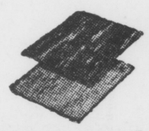

Klonowski was arrested on the charge that he was driving with a learner's permit and no operator's license, and was fined $5 when he appeared before City Judge Mino today.
